Course Overview

Third grade social studies emphasizes civics, important foundations in the study of American government, and the documents upon which our nation is founded. There is also an emphasis on geographic literacy and cultural sensitivity. The textbook provides rich, relevant social studies content with grade appropriate readability and visuals that invite all levels of learners to acquire social studies content and skills. Students meet in this required class for 135 minutes each week.

1: Celebrating Freedom

Essential Theme: There are several founding documents that are important to our country and the freedom that we have today as citizens. These documents include the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Essential Question: What caused these documents to be written? What kind of country did Americans want?

2: Reviewing Geography Skills

Essential Theme: Students will understand that although a map and globe are both models of the Earth, they serve different purposes and are used differently. The students will practice using an atlas and globe to locate the seven continents, four oceans, and several different places on the map.

Essential Question: How are a map and globe different? What tools can be used to find different places on a map?

3. Life in Communities

Essential Theme: Regardless of where it is around the world, a community is a place where people live, work and play. Our country is made up of many communities, some of which are big and some of which are small. All communities have some things in common, and each one is special in its own way.

Essential Question: What are some things you might find in every community? What are the differences between a rural, suburban and urban area? What is your community like?

4. Communities and Geography

Essential Theme: Communities are in different places and each has its own land, water, and weather. People use the land, water and other resources found in these communities to live and survive.

Essential Question: How does the geography of a community affect the people's lives in that community? What are some ways that people adapt to and modify the physical environment of their communities? What is a natural resource? What is the difference between a renewable and nonrenewable resource?

5. How Government Works

Essential Theme: Although citizens work together to solve problems that may arise, there are also governments that work with citizens to solve problems. There is government at the local, state, and national level and each one does different things. They all work to meet the needs of people.

Essential Question: What are some services that each type of government provides? Who are the leaders of government at each level? How do they get their jobs? What are citizens' roles in government?

6. Citizens in Action

Essential Theme: Citizens get involved in their communities in many ways to make them better places to live. They vote, obey laws, and even run for office. Some people join groups to help others. Citizens who get involved help make a community a better place by volunteering their time and efforts.

Essential Question: Why is it important to vote? What are some things children can do in their communities to make it a better place to live? What are some major nonprofit organizations that help the common good?

7. Early Communities in America

Essential Theme: Native Americans have lived in North America since ancient times and formed the first communities in America. About 400 years ago new people came from other lands and built communities in North America. People from Europe came to America to form their own communities, such as Jamestown. This move forever changed the lives of the Native Americans.

Essential Question: What are the things that make up a people's culture? How did Native Americans use the natural resources around them? What are some of the struggles that the people of Jamestown faced? How did the settlers in Jamestown overcome the problems they faced?

8. People and Culture

Essential Theme: In the United States people of many cultures share music, holidays, stories, and art. Culture is an important part of our lives because it shapes our communities and our countries.

Essential Question: What are some cultural activities you enjoy in your community? What is cultural heritage? What is an immigrant? How have immigrants contributed to our country? What are the differences and similarities between heroes, myths, and legends?

9. People on the Move

Essential Theme: People often move to new places to search for a better life. In the process, some people start new communities or settle with people who are similar to them. In our country people like Lewis and Clark and Sacagawea led the way for new communities in the West. Once our country was established people from around the world came to the United States in search of a better life while citizens within our country migrated from one place to another.

Essential Question: How did movement west change our country and the lives of American citizens? Why do you think people in the past wanted to move? How are immigration and migration similar and different? What was the Civil War? What happened as a result of the Civil War? What was the transcontinental railroad?

10. New Ideas and Changing Communities

Essential Theme: Communities are always changing as new technology and inventions are introduced. In the past 200 years people with new ideas have changed how we build our communities. Other people have worked to make our communities safer places to live, work, and play.

Essential Question: What are some inventions that have helped shape communities? How would your life be different today if light bulbs and electricity had not been invented? What are some major advances in health and science that have made us safer? Explain the contributions various inventors from this chapter have contributed to the common good?

11. Living and Working

Essential Theme: People in communities work to earn money. They use the money to buy the things that they need and want, such as food, clothes, a house, and recreation. Making good money choices is important for everyone. An economy is the way a country produces and uses its money, goods, natural resources and services. In the United States' economy, people are free to choose what they will produce and consume.

Essential Question: Why do people earn money? What is the difference between a producer and a consumer? How does the economy work in our country? What effect do expenses have on profit?

Textbooks and other resources

Students use age-appropriate, leveled texts. They use both fiction and nonfiction works and the textbook Our Communities.
