Learners will know:

- The literary elements included in a plot pyramid are: exposition, character, setting, conflict, rising action, climax, falling action/ denouement, resolution, and theme.

- A story's resolution must be directly related to the conflict introduced in its exposition Characters develop and evolve as the plot unfolds, due in part to the events that occur in the story.
- Words can have figurative or connotative meanings that extend beyond literal interpretations
- Language must be straightforward in order to create an objective style that is appropriate for a reader seeking information.
- Decisions that people make affect the way people feel and how these factors are related to reading.
- A story must engage a reader and must orient him or her by establishing a clear context and point of view at the outset of the story.
- Narratives include character, setting, conflict, a plot that unfolds naturally, resolution, and theme, all of which are described and explained using relevant sensory details.
- Transition words, phrases, and clauses are used to convey sequence, shift from one time frame to another, shift from one setting to another, and/or to show relationships among events and experiences.
- The conflict introduced in the exposition, either internal or external, must flow from the ideas presented in the story and must be satisfactorily resolved in the story's resolution.
- The conflict may be resolved or the writer may choose to leave the reader thinking; either way, the conclusion of a story must be satisfying.

Skills

- Extrapolate literary elements presented in a short story or novel and complete a plot pyramid identifying each element
- Explain the connection between the conflict presented in the beginning of the story and the resolution at its end
- Explain the changes that occur to characters in the story or novel as a result of the events that take place in the work
- Establish a clear context and point of view in the exposition of a story by including narrative elements in the introduction and applying lead strategies for narrative writing
- Create narrative or speculative pieces that include key literary elements (character, setting, conflict, plot, resolution, and theme)
- Include sensory detail when describing characters, setting, or events in the narrative piece
- Include sensory detail when describing characters, setting, or events in the narrative piece
- Apply transition words, phrases, and clauses to assist the reader with changes in time, place, or event, transitions that flow naturally from the writing itself
- Organize the story around a central message or theme, which can be specifically stated or implied, and reveals itself as the story's events unfold.
- Connect all key ideas to the topic and/or writing prompt and all ideas will be connected utilizing transitions
- Include compositional risks that create an appropriate voice in the piece (i.e. passion, emotion, humor, sarcasm, etc.)
- Use transition words to connect ideas within categories of information
- Apply the rules of Standard English when drafting and when editing draft
