Topic - Unit Description

This unit will address the natural rights of man, authority, democratic means of conflict resolution, the common good, the virtues of civics, American ideals, and the election process.

Alignment to Core Content Standards

SOC.6.3.8.CivicsPI.1	Evaluate, take, and defend a position on why government is necessary, and the purposes government should serve.
SOC.6.3.8.CivicsPR.1	Analyze primary sources to explain how democratic ideas in the United States developed from the historical experiences of ancient societies, England, and the North American colonies.
SOC.6.3.8.CivicsHR.1	Construct an argument as to the source of human rights and how they are best protected.
SOC.6.3.8.CivicsPR.5	Engage in simulated democratic processes (e.g., legislative hearings, judicial proceedings, elections) to understand how conflicting points of view are addressed in a democratic society. Governments have different structures which impact development (expansion) and civic participation. Economics, Innovation, and Technology: Economic Ways of Thinking Economic decision-making involves setting goals, weighing costs and benefits, and identifying the resources available to achieve those goals.

Enduring Understandings

EU1: Locke and other natural rights philosophers said that the purpose of government is to protect natural rights. Thomas Jefferson agreed and in the Declaration of Independence argued that the protection of rights is the main purpose of government.

EU2: Legitimacy of political authority exists in the eyes of it's citizens.

EU3: Conflicts can be peacefully resolved through diplomacy.

EU4: The common good refers to what is beneficial for all or most members of a given society and therefore citizens enter into the social contract with their government to protect members of it's society.

EU5: Civic virtue describes the character of a good citizen. The Founders designed the American republic with those qualities in mind and believed they were essential to upholding it.

EU6: The American Dream is a national ethos of the United States, the set of ideals (democracy, rights, liberty, opportunity and equality) in which freedom includes the opportunity for prosperity and success, as well as an upward social mobility for the family and children, achieved through hard work in a society with few barriers.

EU7: Another responsibility of citizens is voting. The law does not require citizens to vote, but voting is a very important part of any democracy. By voting, citizens are participating in the democratic process. Citizens vote for leaders to represent them and their ideas, and the leaders support the citizens' interests.
