Enduring Understandings

- As World War II ended, a Cold War between the liberal democratic West and the communist East began, lasting nearly half a century.
- In response to the destructive impact of two world wars, European nations began to set aside nationalistm in favor of economic and political integration, forming a series of transnational unions that grew in size and scope over a the second half of the 20thcentury.
- The process of decolonization occurred over the course of the century with varying degrees of cooperation, interference, or resistance from European imperialist states.
- Postwar economic growth supported an increase in welfare benefits; however, subsequent economic stagnation led to criticism and limitation of the welfare state.
- Eastern Europen nations were defined by their relationship with the Soviet Union, which oscillated between repression and limited reform, until Mikhail Gorbachev's policies led to the collapse of communist governments in Eastern Europe and the fall of the Soviet Union.
- The experience of war intensified a sense of anxiety that permeated many facets of thought and culture, giving way by the 20th century's end to a plurality of intellectual frameworks.
- Science and technology yielded impressive material benefits but also caused immense destruction and posed challenges to objective knowledge.
- During the 20th century, the arts were defined by experimentation, self-expression, subjectivity, and the increasing influence of the United States in both elite and popular culture.
- The 20th century was characterized by large-scale suffering brought on by warfare and genocide as well as tremendous improvements in the standard of living.
- New voices gained prominence in political, intellectual, and social discourse.

Essential Questions

- Are there inherent tensions that exist between capitalism and communism? If so, what are they, and how can they lead to conflict?
- To what extent do capitalist and communist states promote and support human rights during the Cold War? What kinds of rights does each side champion? To what extent are there contradictions on either side in the promotion of these rights?
- What is national self-determination and how can it be historically embedded within the development of human rights and the process of European decolonization?

- How can nongovernmental organizations and social movements put pressure upon governments to expand the distribution and enforcement of rights?
- What is the connection between governmental and/or economic failure and the development of radical politics?

Content

1. Despite efforts to maintain international cooperation through the newly created United Nations, deep-seated tensions between the USSR and the West led to the division of Europe, which was referred to in the West as the Iron Curtain.
2. The Cold War played out on a global stage and involved propaganda campaigns; covert actions; limited "hot wars" in Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the Caribbean (ex: Korean War, Vietnam War, The Yom Kippur War, The Afghanistan War); and an arms race, with the threat of nuclear war.
3. The United States exerted a strong military, political, and economic influence in Western Europe, leading to the creation of world monetary and trade systems (ex: International Monetary Fund (IMF), World Bank, General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), World Trade Organization (WTO)) and geopolitical alliances such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).
4. Countries east of the Iron Curtain came under the military, political, and economic domination of the Soviet Union with the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (COMECON) and the Warsaw Pact.
5. As the economic alliance known as the European Coal and Steel Community, envisioned as a means to spur postwar economic recovery, developed into the European Economic Community (EEC or Common Market) and the European Union (EU, Europe experienced increasing economic and political integration and efforts to establish a shared European identity. (ex: creation of the euro, creation of a European parliament, free movement across borders)
6. Despite indigenous nationalist movements (ex: Indian National Congress, Algeria's National Liberation Front (FLN), Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh, Sukarno in Indonesia), independence for many African and Asian territories was delayed until the mid- and even late 20th century by the imperial powers' reluctance to relinquish control, threats of interference from other nations, unstable economic and political systems, and Cold War strategic alignments.
7. Marshall Plan funds from the United States financed an extensive reconstruction of industry and infrastructure and stimulated an extended period of growth in Western and Central Europe, often referred to as an "economic miracle," which increased the economic and cultural importance of consumerism.
8. The expansion of cradle-to-grave social welfare programs in the aftermath of World War II, accompanied by high taxes, became a contentious domestic political issue as the budgets of European nations came under pressure in the late 20th century.
9. Central and Eastern European nations within the Soviet bloc followed an economic model based on central planning, extensive social welfare, and specialized production among bloc members.
10. After 1956, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev's de-Stalinization policies failed to meet their economic goals within the Soviet Union and prompted revolts in Eastern Europe.
11. Following a long period of economic stagnation, Mikhail Gorbachev's internal reforms of perestroika and glasnost, designed to make the Soviet system more flexible, failed to stave off the collapse of the Soviet Union and the end of its hegemonic control over Eastern and Central European satellites.
12. The effects of world war and economic depression undermined confidence in science and human reason, giving impetus to existentialism and producing postmodernism in the post-1945 period.
13. Military technologies made possible industrialized warfare, genocide, nuclear proliferation, and the risk of global nuclear war.

14. The challenges of totalitarianism and communism in Central and Eastern Europe brought mixed responses from the Christian churches. (ex: Pope John Paul II, Solidarity)
15. New movements in the visual arts, architecture, and music demolished existing aesthetic standards, explored subconscious and subjective states, and satirized Western society and its values. (ex: pop art, postmodernism)
16. Throughout the century, a number of writers challenged traditional literary conventions, questioned Western values, and addressed controversial social and political issues. (ex: Jean-Paul Sartre)
17. Increased imports of United States technology and popular culture after World War II generated both enthusiasm and criticism.
18. Mass production, new food technologies, and industrial efficiency increased disposable income and created a consumer culture in which greater domestic comforts such as electricity, indoor plumbing, plastics, and synthetic fibers became available.
19. With economic recovery after World War II, the birth rate increased dramatically (the Baby Boom), often promoted by government policies (ex: neonatalism, subsidies for large families, child-care facilities)
20. Intellectuals and youth reacted against perceived bourgeois materialism and decadence, most significantly with the revolts of 1968.
21. Because of the economic growth of the 1950s and 1960s, numerous guest workers from southern Europe, Asia, and Africa immigrated to Western and Central Europe; however, after the economic downturn of the 1970s, these workers and their families often became targets of anti-immigrant agitation and extreme nationalist political parties. (ex: French National Front, Austrian Freedom Party)
