Bloom's Taxonomy

Identify and understand the many components that make up one's lifestyle.

Evaluate current lifestyle, determine whether it could be considered "balanced," and create a plan to change any aspect needing improvement.

Project into the future and make several lifestyle choices, including family structure, work commitment, leisure pursuits, material needs.

Determine how much this future lifestyle would cost (monthly) through an extensive, detailed budget project to include such items as mortgage payments, car payments, healthcare costs, grocery costs, entertainment, childcare, savings, and other typical monthly expenditures.

Using figures from budget project, determine what annual salary would be required to support the future lifestyle.

Given a scenario; i.e., someone loses a job or is reduced to part-time, review each budget line item and determine where expenses can be reduced and how a lifestyle can change.
