Enduring Understandings

Scripts are written differently for anchors and actors.

Using industry terms will help the screenwriter fully display their creative vision for a project.

Movie trailers use basic script writing techniques to engage an audience in all elements of a film.

Script writing is the key to a successful project.

Essential Questions

What makes a script work for an anchor?

What makes a script work for an actor?

Why is it important to use industry terms in script writing?

What makes an effective movie trailer?

Content

Script writing has many rules. There is also some flexibility in the way a script is formatted. All scripts have slug lines, action lines, and dialogue in common. The script needs to be formatted in a style that reflects a minute of screen time per page. The format must also allow dialogue to stand out on the page. Students will need to make conscious decisions to format the script with these concepts in mind.
