Skills

This unit will explore mythological morphology and the function of myth in ancient society and its legacy in today's society. This unit will develop skills in identifying the function and role of myth, the morphology of myth as a means of conveying information and culture and the influence of those myths on society. Specifically, students will develop skills in analysis and argumentation consistent with NJSLS-WL. These readings, while not in the target language, provide context for readings in the target language and appeal to NJSLS-WL standards:

• 7.1.IH.IPRET.1: Summarize the main idea, several details, and some inferences of literary or informational texts on a range of topics.
• 7.1.IH.IPRET.8: Collect, share, and analyze data related to global issues including climate change.
