Enduring Understandings

Language connects people.

Learning a different language/culture leads to greater understanding of one's own language and culture.

Language learning involves acquiring strategies to fill communication gaps.

Cultural perspectives are gained by using the language and through experience with its products and practices.

Family relationships, traditions and celebrations are affected by geography and vary throughout the regions of the world.

People around the world live differently depending on factors such as culture, geography and tradition.

Essential Questions

How can I become a more effective reader, writer, speaker and listener in languages other than English?

How does the language I'm studying help me to better understand my native language?

How does learning a new language broaden my horizons?

What can I already communicate in my new language?

How does my family compare to other families in Spanish speaking countries?

How does family life reveal the cultural perspectives of people?

Is my family life similar or different than that of a Hispanic teenager?

How is home life for teenagers similar or different in Spanish speaking countries and in the United States?

How do those similarities and/or differences reveal cultural perspectives in the United States and in Hispanic countries?

Learning Objectives

Investigate the internet to find types of houses in Spanish speaking countries. Students will compare and contrast these houses with their own.

Develop commands using directional vocabulary. Students will either give or listen to a command orally or in writing and then respond through appropriate physical response.

Develop and ask interview questions to talk about preferences in chores around the house. Then compare the findings to how students view chores in Spanish-speaking countries.

Describe yourself and family members using written and oral communication.

Listen to and comprehend the information in a Podcast describing a family in Spanish. Students will illustrate the family tree being described in the Podcast.

Read and interpret a Spanish family tree to discover the definitions of family members in Spanish.

Read and interpret an authentic house advertisement to discover the information used to describe houses, rooms, money and directional vocabulary.

Read and interpret the Mexican fable, “Domitila: A Cinderella Tale from the Mexican Tradition,” adapted by Coburn to identify, describe and analyze the main characters, setting, plot, resolution and discuss cultural values depicted in the authentic story.

Compare and contrast our own version of Cinderella with the Mexican version.

Exchange information with others by writing a pen-pal letter via email to a student in a Spanish speaking country to describe oneself and likes/dislikes using Gustar, the present tense of ser and estar, and noun/adjective agreement.

Design a map of a house using directional vocabulary, rooms, adjectives, and family members.

Dramatize and act out a scene from the Reader’s Theater to properly express intonation and idiomatic expressions in the target language.

Compose and interview classmates to talk about likes and dislikes of particular household chores.

Investigate and discuss the differences in houses between the United States and in Spanish-speaking countries. Think-pair-share to discuss why geographical location and weather can affect the type of houses being built in a particular area.

Create a family tree to identify and describe the members of the family in Spanish using Power Point, Prezi, PowToon, etc.

Develop a short skit with a partner to describe oneself and family members using more adjectives and noun/adjective agreement.

Construct and write a journal entry to describe family members and type of house using noun adjective agreement, family members, adjectives, tener, ser, and possessive adjectives.

Retell Domitila as a short skit or podcast orally or in writing.

Compare and contrast the families and home life represented in the cultures of Puerto Rico and the United States orally or in writing.
