Essential Questions

- Is it better to stick to one's duties, or to be guided by one's emotions?
- What are the best character traits to develop in young people?
- How does one foster discipline?
- Is there such thing as too much of a good thing?
- How do literary characters represent national dialectic?

Application of Knowledge: Students will know that...

- Christianity inherited many of the virtues it prizes from Roman thought
- Emperor Marcus Aurelius' collected notes and observations were titled "Meditations," and they outline his thoughts on the benefits of Stoic philosophy
- Epicureanism is the embrace of human sensation in all of its forms as the key to happiness
- Lucretius wrote "De Rerum Natura," in which he explained his Epicurean philosophy's relationship to the created order
- Moral decay was seen as a critical issue to the state and long cited as a reason for Rome's eventual fall
- Stoicism is the rejection of sensation as the key to happiness, but the embrace of civic, moral, and religious responsibility
- Vergil wrote the "Aeneid," an epic poem that espoused the virtues of Stoic thought

Application of Skills: Students will be able to...

- Explain the relationship between moral philosophy and political order
- Identify differences between Stoicism and Epicureanism
- Maintain focus in reading length monologues
- Talk about religion's impact on the social and political order
- Think introspectively about their own lives and what values they hold

Assessments

- Informal observations of discussions during reading
- Summaries/mini-quizzes on Google Classroom assessing reading homework
- Quiz covering vocabulary specific to unit (Stoicism, Epicureanism, virtus, Lucretius, Marcus Aurelius, etc.)
- Argumentative essay defending either duty or love as more important (using examples from mythology and Roman culture/history)
- Op-Ed pieces in the persona of various philosophers and politicians of Rome
- Write a political speech calling for a return to traditional Roman values
- Information from this unit will be included on a locally developed, end of course benchmark assessment that may take the form of a test, performance based project, or other summative assessment.

Suggested Activities

- Write journal entries reflecting on excerpts of selected works
- Create infographic explaining tenets and proponents of different schools of philosophy
- Summarize selected political speeches
- Read chorally or round-robin excerpts of philosophical works
- Read the Aeneid as a play, assign roles for different students
- Hold class discussions on love/duty, fostering discipline, preserving social order, etc.

Activities to Differentiate Instruction
