

Unit 2: Early Communities

Content Area: Social Studies
Course(s): Social Studies
Time Period: Marking Period 2
Length: 2nd Marking Period
Status: Published

Unit Overview

In the unit, Early Communities, the students will explore the concept of how landforms, climate, and availability of resources have impacted where and how people live and work. This concept will be further developed as they study Native American Indians and early colonists, describe their environment, and explain how they used natural resources to adapt to their environment. The students will learn about the culture of different Native American groups, will be introduced to the concept of economy, and will determine the link between the Haudenosaunee and the United States government. The children will discover why explorers came to America and will describe their interactions with American Indians. They will determine the impact of European colonization on Native American populations and evaluate how California became a mix of Spanish and Indian cultures. In addition, they will learn about why the colonists wanted freedom, identify key people who worked for freedom, and will summarize the early history of the Constitution. Finally, students will compare and contrast how independence was gained in the United States and Canada.

Standards
