Unit Overview

---

After a grueling two-front World War, America came out of the Second World War as a superpower. With the Great Depression behind them, Americans turned towards the 1950's as a time of prosperity. Though Americans did revel in new fads, technologies, and culture, they also had to deal with the threat of a nuclear WWIII. The Soviet Union had also come out of the War as a superpower, and it was determined to spread the idea of Communism around the globe. While the United States did not want to fight the USSR out front, it did want to counter-act Communism with its own Democracy. What ensued was a Cold War that spread to all reaches of the globe and into all facets of everyday life. By looking at the tensions of the War, the United Nations, 1950's life, and the Korean and Cold War, students will be able to describe and evaluate the years after WWII as being some of the most frightening and endearing.

During this unit, the historical content will be infused with information relevant to building students' understanding of civics. This unit will specifically feature an examination of citizen's rights and the Bill of Rights as it is put into sharp relief by the study of Communism and the impact the Cold War had upon the psyche of America.

Activities to Differentiate Instruction

Differentiation for students with diverse needs (including special education, ELL, and gifted):

- General modifications based on student motivation may include:
  - Activity choice
  - Personally meaningful activities
  - Hands-on, multimodal activities
  - Involvement in goal setting and assessment activities
  - Response options

- General modifications based on instructional presentation may include:
  - Previewing information/materials
  - Questioning techniques
  - Brainstorming and webbing
  - Preteaching or reviewing strategies
  - Visual demonstrations, illustrations, or models

- General modifications based on instructional monitoring may include:
  - Timelines for assignments
  - Think-alouds, self-talk
  - Journal entries
  - rubrics and checklists
  - peer reviews and coaching

- General modifications based on classroom organization may include:
  - Cooperative learning groups
  - Buddy systems
  - Group roles (timekeeper, recorder, encourager, materials messenger, illustrator)
  - Prompt-cue
  - Gesture-signal
  - Variety of workspace arrangements
  - Organizational tools – labeled bins or cabinets for materials
  - Seating arrangements – minimize distractions, provide positive student models

- General modifications based on student response may include:
  - Extended time
  - Practice exercises
  - Use of preferred response mode

Content specific modifications for students with special needs may include:

- Modifications & accommodations as listed in the student's IEP
- Give students with organizational issues completed Study Guides and modified Cold War test.
- For United Nations paper, shortened the paper to one page or lengthen paper to five papers for appropriate learners.
- For all students, provide ongoing conferencing about their United Nations paper, to provide assistance to struggling students, and further challenge the advanced students.

Content specific modifications for ELL's may include:

- Tap the student's prior knowledge and experience, which may be different from other students in the class
- Collaboration with ELL Teacher
- Content specific vocabulary important for ELL students to understand include: satellite, airlift, Iron Curtain, GI Bill, stalemate, demilitarized zone, communism, arms race, stockpile, space race

Content specific modifications to extend learning for gifted students may include:

- To enrich learning, have students prepare an interview with someone who grew up or went to school in the 1950's. Write five to seven questions about pop culture and the Cold War.
