

Unit 5: The Civil Rights Era

Content Area: Social Studies
Course(s): Social Studies
Time Period: Marking Period 3
Length: February - March
Status: Published

Unit Overview

Since the years of the Civil War, African Americans have been actively fighting for not only the right to be a citizen, but also the right to live. In the post-war years, things did not get much better, as Jim Crow laws made it legal to discriminate based on skin color. The tensions built for years until the 1950's. During this time, great leaders, both men and women, stood up for their beliefs and let the world know that discrimination and hatred is not, and should not be legal. Leaders like MLK, JFK, and Rosa Parks did their part to instill a generation with hope, and they helped to change not only the laws, but the way people viewed America. Students will learn about the fight for Civil Rights for African Americans, as well as other groups, during this time period.

During this unit, the historical content will be infused with information relevant to building students' understanding of civics. This unit focuses on rights guaranteed within the Constitution as well as gaining an understanding of the legal process for challenging the system when rights are not being upheld. In addition, the study of the civil rights movement also brings attention to the civic duties of American citizens and how citizens have the right to protest.

Standards

Activities to Differentiate Instruction

Differentiation for students with diverse needs (including special education, ELL, and gifted):

- General modifications based on student motivation may include:
 - Activity choice
 - Personally meaningful activities
 - Hands-on, multimodal activities
 - Involvement in goal setting and assessment activities
 - Response options
- General modifications based on instructional presentation may include:
 - Previewing information/materials
 - Questioning techniques
 - Brainstorming and webbing
 - Preteaching or reviewing strategies
 - Visual demonstrations, illustrations, or models
- General modifications based on instructional monitoring may include:
 - Timelines for assignments
 - Think-alouds, self-talk
 - Journal entries
 - rubrics and checklists
 - peer reviews and coaching
- General modifications based on classroom organization may include:
 - Cooperative learning groups
 - Buddy systems
 - Group roles (timekeeper, recorder, encourager, materials messenger, illustrator)
 - Prompt-cue
 - Gesture-signal
 - Variety of workspace arrangements
 - Organizational tools – labeled bins or cabinets for materials
 - Seating arrangements – minimize distractions, provide positive student models

- General modifications based on student response may include:

- Extended time
- Practice exercises
- Use of preferred response mode

Content specific modifications for students with special needs may include:

- Modifications & accommodations as listed in the student's IEP
- Students with differing abilities will receive completed study guides and notes during the unit.
- Differentiation of the Bio-Historical Project through use of more Internet sites as resources, fewer pages on the written report, and computer-generated stars.
- Provide a graphic organizer to assist students in their analysis of primary sources and provide reminders in what areas to look for clues for revealing their meaning.

Content specific modifications for ELL's may include:

- Tap the student's prior knowledge and experience, which may be different from other students in the class
- Collaboration with ELL Teacher
- Content specific vocabulary important for ELL students to understand include: segregation, civil rights, integration, boycott, sit-in, welfare, rights

Content specific modifications to extend learning for gifted students may include:

- Students will take their "person" from the Little Rock Nine event and write a response to a current-day Civil Rights issue occurring in America.

21st Century Skills

CRP.K-12.CRP2.1	Career-ready individuals readily access and use the knowledge and skills acquired through experience and education to be more productive. They make connections between abstract concepts with real-world applications, and they make correct insights about when it is appropriate to apply the use of an academic skill in a workplace situation.
CRP.K-12.CRP4.1	Career-ready individuals communicate thoughts, ideas, and action plans with clarity, whether using written, verbal, and/or visual methods. They communicate in the workplace with clarity and purpose to make maximum use of their own and others' time. They are excellent writers; they master conventions, word choice, and organization, and use effective tone and presentation skills to articulate ideas. They are skilled at interacting with others; they are active listeners and speak clearly and with purpose. Career-ready individuals think about the audience for their communication and prepare accordingly to ensure the desired outcome.
CRP.K-12.CRP5.1	Career-ready individuals understand the interrelated nature of their actions and regularly make decisions that positively impact and/or mitigate negative impact on other people, organization, and the environment. They are aware of and utilize new technologies, understandings, procedures, materials, and regulations affecting the nature of their work as it relates to the impact on the social condition, the environment and the profitability of the organization.
CRP.K-12.CRP7.1	Career-ready individuals are discerning in accepting and using new information to make decisions, change practices or inform strategies. They use reliable research process to search for new information. They evaluate the validity of sources when considering the use and adoption of external information or practices in their workplace situation.
CRP.K-12.CRP8.1	Career-ready individuals readily recognize problems in the workplace, understand the nature of the problem, and devise effective plans to solve the problem. They are aware of problems when they occur and take action quickly to address the problem; they thoughtfully investigate the root cause of the problem prior to introducing solutions. They carefully consider the options to solve the problem. Once a solution is agreed upon, they follow through to ensure the problem is solved, whether through their own actions or the actions of others.

CRP.K-12.CRP11.1

Career-ready individuals find and maximize the productive value of existing and new technology to accomplish workplace tasks and solve workplace problems. They are flexible and adaptive in acquiring new technology. They are proficient with ubiquitous technology applications. They understand the inherent risks-personal and organizational-of technology applications, and they take actions to prevent or mitigate these risks.
