Application of Knowledge and Skills...

Activities

- Students will be picked randomly to interview each other about their favorite pastimes and activities they participate in. As a whole group, the class will then create a graph using those findings.
- Have students write down their three favorite activities. Have them pair up and share their information using complete sentences. As a class, call on individuals to report their partners' favorite pastimes. Partners will then confirm or correct the findings.
- Teacher will prepare short descriptions of places that they need to visit using the vocabulary from the chapter. Read each description aloud and have students name the appropriate location.
- Have students write down six activities that they enjoy and then circulate the room to collect signatures from others who enjoy the same activities.
- Students will translate the Fotonovela to English.
- Have students act out the Fotonovela and change the likes and dislikes of the characters to reflect theirs.
- Ask students to write six true/false statements about the Fotonovela episode. Have them exchange papers with a classmate who will complete the activity identifying if each statement is true or false.
- Have students play a game of charades acting out the different activities while the rest of the class writes their guess on the white boards.
- Have the class stand in a circle. As the teacher tosses the ball to a student, they will call out the infinitive of a stem-changing verb followed by a pronoun. The student should conjugate the verb correctly and then pass the ball to another student while giving them a verb and pronoun to conjugate.
- Have students choose their favorite pastime and work in small groups with other students who have chosen that same activity. Have each group write six sentences about the activity, using a different stem-changing verb.

Activities to Differentiate Instruction

- Have native speakers describe sports preferences in their families' countries of origin.
- Have students edit false statements to make them true.
- Allow students to use their vocabulary list while playing charades game.
- Choice of working alone or in partners.
- Provide skeleton notes for presentations.
- Provide opportunities for students to work together in teacher designed groups.
- Provide tiered activities and homework.
- Assign Spanish "experts" to assist with each lesson.
