Enduring Understandings

1. The Artistic Impact of Directing, Cinematography, and Editing: Students will explore how the artistic choices made by directors, cinematographers, and editors serve as powerful storytelling devices, influencing the narrative, mood, and emotional impact of films.
2. Narrative Craft and Character Development: Students will analyze various script structures, including the Three-Act Structure and the Hero's Journey, to understand how they shape compelling storylines and character arcs, enhancing the depth and engagement of the audience.
3. Stylized Filmmaking and Genre Exploration: Students will examine the role of stylized filmmaking techniques within different film genres, investigating how these distinctive approaches contribute to genre-specific storytelling and thematic expressions.

Essential Questions

- 1 What are the elements of a film?
- 2 Who are the people who make films?
- 3 How are these elements reflected in the art of film?
- 4 Why is silent film so important to the mise en scene?

Knowledge and Skills

- Understand how various cinematic elements and techniques are used to create a style or genre of film, and how it contrasts from other genres in terms of pacing, tempo, suspense, and point of view.
- Identify how symbols and motifs can create deeper meaning in storytelling.
- Understand the level of planning, detail, and creativity that goes into the production of a film.
- Articulate how filmmaking components support a character's journey and/or development.
- Differentiate styles of acting (i.e. theater acting, Method acting, realism)
- Compare and contrast different directing and cinematography techniques.
- Investigate how editing, cuts, and shot length can affect the overall tone and story.
- Study how music and sound effects add to tone and emotion.

Resources

In addition to this unit focusing on comparing and contrasting film genres, it will examine the filmmaking “rules” to create a specific type of style. Below is a list of suggested genres and films to include in this unit to analyze.

1) Horror

Psycho (1960), dir. Alfred Hitchcock

- How POV shots affect storytelling and viewers' emotional attachment to characters.
- Suspense vs. horror.
- How music plays with expectations.
- Motifs, symbols, and repetition.
- "Twist" endings.
- The proto-slasher film, the first modern horror film.

Additional suggested films include but are not limited to::

- The Birds (1963), dir. Alfred Hitchcock

- Dune (2021), dir. Denis Villeneuve

Transfer Goals

1. Analytical Thinking and Visual Literacy: Students will demonstrate advanced critical thinking skills, analyzing how films effectively integrate visual storytelling, language, and intention to convey meaning and complexity, leading to insightful interpretations and well-supported evaluations in written analyses and class discussions.
2. Application of Cinematic Techniques: Students will apply their understanding of thematic cinematic techniques, such as directing, cinematography, editing, and script structure, to create an original short film. Through this creative project, they will showcase their ability to effectively communicate narratives and develop characters, gaining hands-on experience in the art of filmmaking.

Assessments

Formative: Strategic Questioning - higher order thinking/Historical Thinking Skill

Creative project: Short Film Project (Graded by rubric, with teacher feedback/critique.)
