Enduring Understandings

Students will understand the following:

What it means to be human has changed dramatically over time in terms of compassion and concepts of equality.

Effective leaders may show uncertainty while maintaining leadership.

People may be willing to sacrifice their lives to overcome injustice.

Having integrity may involve making difficult and often painful decisions.

Individuals write within a particular situation and make strategic writing choices based on that situation.

Writers make claims about subjects, rely on evidence that supports the reasoning that justifies the claim, and often acknowledge or respond to other, possibly opposing arguments.

Writers guide understanding of a text's line of reasoning and claims through that text's organization and integration of evidence.

The rhetorical situation informs the strategic stylistic choices that writers make.

Essential Questions

What does it mean to be human?

What characteristics should a leader possess?

What price should a person be willing to pay if he/she breaks an unjust law?

Is it more important to be right than to be happy?

How do writers make strategic choices based on particular situations to prove an argument?

How do we determine the speaker's subject, claim, and evidence within a piece? How do we determine the validity of the subject's argument in that piece?

How do we follow a line of reasoning within a nonfiction text?

What effect does the rhetorical situation have on stylistic choices the writer makes?
