Standards

	Civic participation and deliberation are essential characteristics of individuals who support democracy and its principles.
SOC.6.1.12.CivicsPD.1.a	Use multiple sources to analyze the factors that led to an increase in the political rights and participation in government. Global interconnections create complex spatial patterns at multiple scales that continue to change over time.
SOC.6.1.12.GeoGI.1.a	Explain how geographic variations impacted economic development in the New World, and its role in promoting trade with global markets (e.g., climate, soil conditions, other natural resources). Economic globalization affects economic growth, labor markets, human rights guarantees, the environment, resource allocation, income distribution, and culture.
SOC.6.1.2	Revolution and the New Nation (1754–1820s) Constitutions, laws, treaties, and international agreements seek to maintain order at the national, regional, and international levels of governance.
SOC.6.1.12.CivicsPI.2.a	Prepare and articulate a point of view about the importance of individual rights, separation of powers, and governmental structure in New Jersey’s 1776 constitution and the United States Constitution.
SOC.6.1.12.CivicsPI.2.b	Examine the emergence of early political parties and their views on centralized government and foreign affairs and compare these positions with those of today’s political parties. Civic deliberation requires civic dispositions, attentiveness to multiple perspectives, and understanding diverse perspectives. Civics, Government, and Human Rights: Participation and Deliberation Civic participation and deliberation are essential characteristics of productive citizenship.
SOC.6.3.12.CivicsPD.1	Develop plan for public accountability and transparency in government related to a particular issue(s) and share the plan with appropriate government officials. Civics, Government, and Human Rights: Human and Civil Rights Global economic activities involve decisions based on national interests, the exchange of different units of exchange, decisions of public and private institutions, and the ability to distribute goods and services safely. Historical sources and evidence provide an understanding of different points of view about historical events. Evidence from multiple relevant historical sources and interpretations can be used to develop a reasoned argument about the past.

Enduring Understandings

1. American national institutions were hindered by a series of challenges that included conflicts in regional identities, limited economic resources, and an untested federal government, that pushed the Continental Army and the Confederation Congress to adapt to those challenges while conducting a war with Great Britain.

A. In response to domestic and international tensions, the new United States debated and formulated foreign policy initiatives and asserted an international presence.

B. Despite considerable loyalist opposition, as well as Great Britain's apparently overwhelming military and financial advantages, the patriot cause succeeded because of the colonists' greater familiarity with the land, their resilient military and political leadership, their ideological commitment, and their support from European allies.

C. Many new state constitutions and the national Articles of Confederation, reflecting republican fears of both centralized power and excessive popular influence, placed power in the hands of the legislative branch and maintained property qualifications for voting and citizenship.

2. During and after the American Revolution, an increased awareness of the inequalities in society motivated some individuals and groups to call for the abolition of slavery and greater political democracy in the new state and national governments.

- Students will determine, through media literacy skills and lateral, close reading strategies when evaluating primary and secondary resources the following: 1. context of the text; 2. reason for the text; 3. type of source the text is; 4. the point of view of the author of the text 5. the intended audience for the text 6. evaluate the stance of the text
- Students will use Historical Thinking Skills to evaluate sources and ideas. Comparison, Contextualization, Continuity and Change over Time, Periodization, Synthesis, Claims, Point of View, Intended Audience, and Purpose.
