	Historical events and developments were shaped by the unique circumstances of time and place as well as broader historical contexts.

Social and political systems throughout time have promoted and denied civic virtues and democratic principles.

Governments around the world support universal human rights to varying degrees.

Understanding the interrelated patterns of change by examining multiple events allows for a clearer understanding of the significance of individuals and groups.

Civic and political institutions address social and political problems at the local, state, tribal, national, and/or international level.

Global economic activities involve decisions based on national interests, the exchange of different units of exchange, decisions of public and private institutions, and the ability to distribute goods and services safely.

Democratic principles concerning universal human rights, concepts of equality, and the commitment to human freedom are commonly expressed in fundamental documents, values, laws, and practices.

Geography, People, and the Environment: Global Interconnections

Economic globalization affects economic growth, labor markets, human rights guarantees, the environment, resource allocation, income distribution, and culture.

Human settlement activities impact the environmental and cultural characteristics of specific places and regions.

Global economic activities involve decisions based on national interests, the exchange of different units of exchange, decisions of public and private institutions, and the ability to distribute goods and services safely.

Civic participation and deliberation are essential characteristics of individuals who support democracy and its principles.

Global interconnections create complex spatial patterns at multiple scales that continue to change over time.

Complex interacting factors influence people's perspective.

Enduring Understandings

- Students will be able to understand the dichotomy of the 17th century in regard to the creation of Absolute Monarchies and Constitutional Monarchies.
- Students will determine, through media literacy skills and lateral, close reading strategies when evaluating primary and secondary resources the following: 1. context of the text; 2. reason for the text; 3. type of source the text is; 4. the point of view of the author of the text 5. the intended audience for the text 6. evaluate the stance of the text
- Students will use Historical Thinking Skills to evaluate sources and ideas. Comparison, Contextualization, Continuity and Change over Time, Periodization, Synthesis, Claims, Point of View, Intended Audience, and Purpose.
