Content Area: Art
Course(s): Graphic Design 8
Time Period: SeptOct
Length: 30-35 days / 8th grade
Status: Published

Unit Overview

As the introductory unit to this course, this unit will expose students to the concept that design is all around us. Through readings and connections, we will answer the questions "what is graphic design?", "what does a graphic designer do?", and "why is a graphic designer important?", while offering a brief history, allowing students to discover the diversity in this medium and explore its communication throughout history.

In addition, this unit will also highlight the elements of art (space/ balance), the principals of design and its process, and basics in design components, and typography. This unit will also review the career profiles of some professional designers, chronicling their experiences in graphic arts.

- Graphic design is everywhere, and it is very powerful.
- Effective graphic designers have influenced and improved our lives, and they have made us more discriminating consumers.
- Effective graphic design construction is critical for the user to correctly identify the message of the design and make you a better observer of the world around you.
- Effective graphic design layout is critical for the user to correctly identify the message of the design.
- Awareness of the elements of arts and principles of design will help you to understand and interpret the multiple messages around you.
- In graphic design, studies will emphasize: line, shape, value, texture, color,
- All graphic design has a purpose or a function.
- Color can mean or stand for many different ideas.
- Designers should always be aware of how color can add emotional or other meaning to any design.
- Many of the elements of art and principles of design are present in every visual image.
- Visual symbols are important in graphic design.

- What is the graphic design process?
- What are the elements of art and the principles of design, especially as applied to graphic design?
- How do design components add to projects?
- How do designers choose which components (typography, photography, illustrations, scans, etc) will make to their designs?

Suggested Activities & Best Practices

Lower Level Learners (LLL) Higher Level Learners (HLL)

The process will be differentiated through supplying three tiers of questioning for LLL, intermediate, and HLL students. Students will be given choice of project direction based on their interests, abilities and learning styles in order to promote confidence and success.

After completing Unit 1, students will be able to:

- Identify what graphic design is
- Classify different types of typestyles and recognize type families and s
- Modify an existing artwork by recreating logos
- Define vocabulary throughout to be able to speak professionally about graphic design
- Critique other Graphic Design professionals and their paths to career
- Compose studio experience, were students construct their own life with images found online or in magazines

Suggested activity:

- Students will create a flip book that shows the movement of a shape through space. Students will be able to use the elements of art and the principles of design to tell a simple story without words.
- Students will be able to create a collaged piece using 3 shades of gray and black on a white background, based on a famous literary quotation. Students will be able to create unity and emphasis in a piece of artwork. (The idea is to create a poster that adds to the meaning of the quote through visual imagery.)

Interdisciplinary Connection: Civics, Character Education and community

Statement of Objective: In a studio experience, students will create a message on a poster with meaning by announcing a real or fictional school event. They will incorporate basic images, type, and color (as learned in this unit 1). They will know they are successful when they can measure their assignment with a rubric score of 4-1 based on the following criteria: planning (rationale/ research - composition, elements, principles, movement); media use (organizational use, compositional techniques); and work process (discussion, reflection, and evaluation).

Anticipatory Set/Do Now: Think about a real or fictional school event you would like to announce - an election, a fund-raiser, athletic event, art show, concert, or dramatic performance. Recall your assignment from last week "Shape moving in Space". How might you use the same basic concept to create an attention-grabbing poster?

Learning Activity: Create it:

1. Think about what your chosen event means. What images would most clearly define it? Sketch four to six possible image in your sketch books. Choose one image to play with on a page. Ask a group member to choose with you, as well. Decide on color, size, space - where would it command the most attention? Experiment with layout. Use books and resources to assist you in classic layout ideas.
2. Consider the words/ text and images that are necessary to get your point across. Do you need dates, times, places, prices?
3. Decide on the importance of the information. What is the most and the least important? What information is obvious and need not be included at all? Experiment with the quantity of text.
4. Experiment with typefaces. Which ones best match the nature of the event? What position will give the text the prominence it needs?
5. Create your work by hand, or on the computer (advanced students who are familiar with graphic programs prior to instruction)

Student Assessment/CFU's: Gallery walk: Hang posters on the wall and observe from a few feet way. What do we notice first? Does the poster clearly announce the event?

Materials: Sketch books, cover stock/ poster paper, pencils, coloring material (colored pencils, markers, etc), additional art resources from art cart; computer graphic programs for those who are advanced (CS suite to be taught next marking period)
