Sample Lesson

Unit Name: Unit, Week 1, How do new experiences offer new perspectives?

NJSLS:

Interdisciplinary Connection: Reading and Writing

Statement of Objective:

Identify phrasal verbs.

Link subjects and verbs in complex sentences.

Build upon lesson vocabulary.

Understand contractions I'm and we're.

Describe how new experiences offer new perspectives.

Anticipatory Set/Do Now: This week we will be looking at the language in the realistic fiction "Cow Music." Discussing the language in the text will help you understand what the author is saying. Today we will learn about how new experiences can offer new perspectives, or views, about people and places.

Learning Activity: Use the Graphic Organizer Review perspective (cognate: perspectiva). Explain that the photograph shows a woman standing on the edge of a Tlingit (TLiN-git) clanhouse viewing or getting a perspective of her surroundings. Sometimes experiencing something new makes us feel differently about something.

Talk About It Focus partners on the photograph and have them discuss what they can tell about a Tlingit house from the photo. Have them write their answers in the chart and then share their answers with the class. I see faces made of wood, an opening, wings, and painted walls.

Have partners talk about going somewhere new and something they learned from this experience.

Point out that an experience includes what you see, do, and learn. Have students repeat: experience, experiences, experienced. Point out the word endings for experiences and experienced. Say: I have had many experiences. Some people would say that I'm an experienced teacher.

Explain that seeing how different people live also offers new perspectives.
