Unit Overview

In Period 9 students will examine that new conservatism changed American politics evident through the presidencies of Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford, and Jimmy Carter and the successes and failure of the Clinton administration. Students will also examine the political fluctuation and seeming inability of the American people to force a consistent ideological stance.

Enduring Understanding

Chapter 31

- As higher education opportunities and new technologies rapidly expanded, increasing social mobility encouraged th emigration of the middle class to the suburbs and of many Americans to the South and West. The Sun Belt region emerged as a significant political and economic force.

- Ronald Reagan's victory in the presidential election of 1980 represented an important milestone, allowing conservatives to enact significant tax cuts and continue the deregulation of many industries.
- Reagan asserted U.S. opposition to communism through speeches, diplomatic efforts, limited military interventions, and a buildup of nuclear and conventional weapons.

Chapter 32

- Policy debates continued over free-trade agreements, the scope of the government social safety net, and calls to reform the U.S. financial system.
- Real wages stagnated for the working and middle class amid growing economic inequality.
- Intense political and cultural debates continued over issues such as immigration policy, diversity, gender roles, and family structures.
- In the wake of attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, the United States launched military efforts against Terrorism and lengthy, controversial conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq.
- Despite economic and foreign policy challenges, the United States continued as the world's leading superpower in the 21st century.

Essential Questions

Chapter 31

- Analyze the relative success of the Ford and Carter administrations in both domestic and foreign policy.

- To what degree and in what ways did the election of Ronald Reagan constitute a "revolution"?

Chapter 32

- Analyze the conflict over liberalism and conservatism in the 1990s and cite specific examples of conflict and accommodation.
- Analyze the reasons for and the results of the highly contested elections of 2000 and 2004.
- To what degree and in what ways did American foreign policy respond to direct and indirect threats to American security from terrorist organizations.
