Unit Overview

Unit 5: In this unit, students will examine various literary and informational texts about why people find it entertaining to be frightened. They will also examine the elements of an argument in order to craft a written essay and participate in an argumentative presentation during the different performance tasks. Ultimately during all of the reading, writing, speaking & listening tasks, students will consider what it takes to face our fears.

Enduring Understanding

- By reading and evaluating an argumentative essay, reading fiction, non-fiction, and poetry student will better understand the ways writers express ideas.
- By learning the elements of writing an argumentative essay and writing their own argumentative essay students will learn how to write for a number of reasons and will conduct research to clarify and explore ideas.
- By developing a deeper understanding of the correct use of pronouns and the use of irony in their writing, students will practice adding meaning to either writing through irony.
- By building on one another's ideas, and communicating with one another student will learn how to incorporate audio, visuals, and text in presentations.

Essential Questions

How do we respond when challenged by fear?

- Determine meaning of unknown or multi-meaning words and phrases
- Analyze craft and structure of text

LA.RL.11-12.2	Determine two or more themes or central ideas of a text and analyze their development over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to produce a complex account; provide an objective summary of the text.
LA.RL.11-12.3	Analyze the impact of the author's choices regarding how to develop and relate elements of a story or drama (e.g., where a story is set, how the action is ordered, how the characters are introduced and developed).
LA.RL.11-12.4	Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in the text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone, including words with multiple meanings or language that is particularly fresh, engaging, or beautiful. (e.g., Shakespeare as well as other authors.)

- LA.RL.11-12.5 Analyze how an author's choices concerning how to structure specific parts of a text (e.g., the choice of where to begin or end a story, the choice to provide a comedic or tragic resolution) contribute to its overall structure and meaning as well as its aesthetic impact.
- LA.RL.11-12.6 Analyze a case in which grasping a point of view requires distinguishing what is directly stated in a text from what is really meant (e.g., satire, sarcasm, irony, or understatement).

Suggested Activities & Best Practices

Example: Assign a book talk project and have students work in their student centered groups to create a rubric for the assignment.

Student Centered Learning: Students should either have already selected groups or groups of their choosing and be ready to jigsaw or answer higher order thinking discussion questions related to the theme or topic of the piece of literature being discussed.

Use of Rubrics: After discussing an assignment, allow students to create what they believe to be a fair rubric for assessing the assignment. This allows the students to have a say in how they will be graded as well as accountability for the assignment.

Starting classes with a "Do Now" activity: Using a connection to life question that relates to the piece of literature will make the students be able to connect to the text and jump start to discussion.

Allowing students to choose their own projects: Having a variety of projects that the students can choose from helps address all learning types. This will allow the students to choose the project they feel they can be most successful in completing.

Brainstorming: This helps in the writing process because it will allow the student to know if they are grasping the topic.

Jigsaw: Students will work in groups on advanced questions and then teach the other groups their findings.
