Suggested Activities & Best Practices

- Students will attempt to use their nonverbal skills (without cell phone communications) for an entire day and journal their experience. This will help students to understand that our nonverbal nuances can effect the "messages" we want others to understand.
- Students will research and tell the class school appropriate jokes in character voices OR tell the class a "spooky" story in character. This drama-like activity will help students understand that the way things are said can have more impact than what actually IS said.
