Unit Overview

In this unit, students will study how artists create emphasis on a particular point in their 2D or 3D composition. They will view examples of emphasis in art and apply previous knowledge about color, shape and contrast to understand the concept. Students will understand that emphasis can be accomplished in a number of ways: color can be used to highlight a special feature of the composition, an unexpected image or change in content adds shock value and draws the eye in, or by introducing a shape to the composition where similar shape types do not exist. Students will understand how the compositional arrangement influences the viewer's eye to land on a focal point forcing us to see what the artist intends the audience to see.

In grade 7, students will be able to assimilate the art concept, and then apply it to the creation of an original drawing that uses a contrasting out of place color or shape to establish a focal point in the foreground, middle-ground or background.

Enduring Understanding

Holding the attention of the intended viewer is the goal of the artists, and it is done so through the nonverbal cues of emphasis in well-developed artistic compositions. Emphasis is usually developed through the use of contrast; wherein the more contrast used to create the focal point, the stronger the emphasis.

Essential Questions

Overarching: The “Big Idea”:

How does the artist use of emphasis draw in his/her viewer and capture their attention?

Topical: Unit or lesson specific but promoting inquiry:

What does it mean to focus on something?

What makes an object stand out?

What are some methods arts use to create an area of emphasis in their art work?

Does having a focal point make a piece of art more aesthetically pleasing?

Why are focal points so important?

How does nature use focal points?

How does industry use focal points to trap consumers?

Exit Skills

By the end of Unit 3, 7th grade Visual Art Students Should be able to:

- Analyze how a focal point was used to create an area of emphasis
- Identify tactics that artists use to create focal points in their work
- Describe the relationship that contrast has with developing emphasis in a piece of art
- Determine the importance of a focal point
- Create a composition that uses a focal point to create an are of emphasis in a pice of art

Sample Lesson

Unit Name: EMPHASIS

CCSS/NJCCCS: see standards listed below

Interdisciplinary Connection: Science

Statement of Objective: SWDAT create drawing of various landscapes, climates, or habitats demonstrating proper layering of foreground, middleground and background objects. Students will also include an obviously out-of-place animal or object in one of the grounds to create a focal point and emphasis through juxtaposition. The out-of-place object is meant to carry a message about the ill-effects of climate change.

Anticipatory Set/Do Now: Have you ever wondered what the world might look like if climate change continues moving in a destructive direction? Make a list of 3 places you feel are most affected by climate change and predict what they might look like in 100 years if interventions are not made.

Learning Activity: After learning about climate change, students will select a landscape or habit to focus on as their subject. Students will recreate the landscape illustrating foreground, middleground and background. Students will add to one of the grounds an obviously out-of-place animal or object in order to create a focal point and emphasis through juxtaposition. The out-of-place object is meant to carry a message about the ill-effects of climate change.

Student Assessment/CFU's: By the end of the unit, students will have a landscape drawing with an out of place object demonstrating the principle of Emphasis while making a commentary on climate change.

5,4,3,2,1 Fingers to demonstrate level of understanding as they work (5 fingers=Understands entire concept, 3=Some concept ideas still fuzzy, 1=Needs assistance)

Materials: Pencil/Paper/coloring or painting tools

21st Century Themes and Skills: Creativity & Innovation

Differentiation/Modifications:

LLL: modified design elements will be outlined for special education students, instructional videos viewed via use of the Chromebook can be used for assistance.

HLL: more complex elements will be required to showcase connections made

Integration of Technology: YouTube video/online articles/Document camera will be used to broadcast paper manipulation step-by-step demonstration. Use of Chromebooks to research paper manipulation techniques.
