SWBAT: Participate successfully in a modified volleyball game

Anticipatory Set/Do Now:

Having the students play "everybody's it" which is a tag game that gets them moving and having fun. During resting periods asking the students questions about the game of volleyball and the skills we learned. This allows them to reflect on how the game is played and why we hit the ball the way we do. Also, asking them questions that allow them to understand that volleyball can be played life long. This is the goal of physical Education is getting the students prepared for the a lifelong physical fitness career.

Warm-Ups: Bent-knee Sit-Ups, Push-ups, Straddle sit stretch, Lateral Jump, Seated toe touch, Body Bend, Forward Lunge, Pivot Relay, Rope Jumping, Running in place, Walk Jog/Dynamic stretches.

Learning Activity:

Underhand Serve: Arrange students into groups of 5-6 students behind lines about 15-20ft apart. Give each group a volleyball and demonstrate the underhand serve.

Checking for understanding by having several students demonstrate.

- Describe and demonstrate the skill: Start in stride stance (weight on back foot) with the leg opposite your hitting arm forward.

- Hold the ball waist high in front of your front leg

- Extend your serving arm, drawing it backward in a pendular motion

- To hit the ball, bring your hitting arm forward and shift your weight from your back foot to your front foot

- Contact the ball with the heel of your open hand, squarely below and behind the center of the ball

Have the students practice this at various distances based on skill level; 15ft, 25ft, 35ft

Forearm pass: Arrange the students in groups of 5-6 students Describe and demonstrate the skill. Checking for understanding by having each group try the skill

- In volleyball we move the ball by using the forearm pass
 - To prepare students to make a forearm pass, get into forward stride position with your weight on the balls of your feet
 - Contact the ball with your forearms slightly about your wrist. Your arms should make a firm platform for the ball to contact
 - The power for the pass comes from extending your legs and hips along with raising and flexing your shoulders. So at the time of contact, extend your arms until your elbows are straight and your thumbs and fingers are extended. Meanwhile, your legs should extend until your knees and hips are straight and your toes are extended.
- Have the students practice bumping the ball when it's tossed from a classmate
Variation: Have students take turns bumping the ball up to each other without tossing.

Make it into a game "keep it up" each group begins bumping the ball back and forth counting the number of times a team member is able to bump it without hitting the ground.

Overhead Set: Arrange the students into groups of 5-6. Describe and demonstrate the skill.

- The overhead set is used to position the ball for a spike and as a way to pass the ball.
 - To prepare to use the overhead set, move under the ball with your knees bent and hands held above your head with your elbows pointing down
 - Spread your fingers, thumbs pointed toward each other and wrists extended backward.

Have students practice setting the ball that has been tossed by a partner. Establish a rotation system similar to that used in a real volleyball game. j

Variation: Have students practice at further distances have students provide feedback to improve form.

When students have performed each skill game play may happen. Students who are not participating in the gameplay are working independently providing positive feedback to students who are playing the game.

Student Assessment/CFU's:

1. What should you remember about the starting position for the underhand serve?
Demonstrate?
2. What are some things to remember when you are serving?
3. Where should you contact the ball?
4. What do you think would happen if you contacted the ball above its center?
5. What should you remember about the starting position for the forearm pass?
6. From where do you get power for the pass?
7. What should you remember about the position of your arms before and after contact?
8. What should you remember about the starting position for the overhead set?

9. What part of your hands makes contact with the ball?
10. Is it important to extend your knees at the time of contact? Why?
11. Demonstrate the volleyball rotation effectively.

Student Assessment/CFU's:

1. Have a class discussion in the beginning and end of class testing the students ability to distinguish between the different types of fitness
2. Make sure the students are performing each exercise correctly
3. Have the students reflect on their fitness during the rest station allowing them to correct each others form and technique
4. Have the students create a fitness work out they can do at home (Modified to their homes)
