

6 Music Unit 4 (Expressive Elements)

Content Area: Visual & Performing Arts
Course(s):
Time Period: Marking Period 4
Length: 9 Weeks
Status: Published

Unit Overview

In this unit, students will explore the elements of Dynamics, Articulation, Style, and Timbre (Tone Color) as they are found in a variety of cultures and historical periods. Teachers will develop students' knowledge of these musical elements by leading them through the Artistic Processes: Creating, Performing, Responding, and Connecting. Within these processes, students learn to think like musicians utilizing the practices relevant to the musical task-at-hand. Using varied media, instructional approaches, and assessment strategies, teachers will facilitate student learning toward communicating with competency. Students should be able to communicate using the vocabulary, materials, tools, techniques, and intellectual methods of the discipline in a developmentally appropriate manner. Demonstrated growth in each process will be measured based on specific performance expectations connected to the Anchor Standards. Students in 6th, 7th, & 8th grades have the opportunity to further enhance their experience, and deep their understanding in, these elements through participation in instrumental and/or vocal ensemble music.

As stated in the NJ Student Learning Standards our mission is “To empower students to develop creative and critical thinking, social-emotional competencies, and intellectual and expressive abilities that will allow them to become active, contributing members of a global society.”

Exemplar Learning Activities

As listed by the NAFME Core Content Standards Council, knowledge development and skills in each process may be present as follows:

CREATING

- Students will express musical knowledge through available multiple mediums, including movement, to provide and demonstrate a greater depth of knowledge and application.
- Notating or writing of musical ideas may take place on paper or in software and demonstrate a higher level of musical literacy, or an ability to communicate the language of music, these may include:
 - A common working vocabulary that facilitates discussion, understanding, and sharing that takes place in word and sound. (For instance, a musical student should be able to communicate musically with other musical students using supporting rhythms, pitches, melodies, or harmonies when playing music together.)
 - Sounds recorded via MIDI, audio, or other forms of technology, not limiting the idea of notational skills to staves on paper (this is a practice popularized and representative of a particular music and culture and not the totality of music around the globe, historically).

PERFORMING

- Students will sing and/or play on musical instruments (traditional and/or folk or classroom instruments, guitars, ukuleles, etc., computers, tablets, phone apps and other emerging medium).
- Students will be able to sing and/or play, and perform (on available musical instruments; traditional or computers, tablets, phone apps and other emerging media).
- Students will identify and connect the expressive qualities of their music through movement that is integrally woven to their desired intent and outcome.
- Students will be able to analyze as they sing and/or play, and perform (on available musical instruments; traditional or computers, tablets, phone apps and other emerging media).
- Students will be able to sing, play, and apply personally developed criteria as they sing and/or play, and perform with:
 - technical accuracy
 - stylistic expression
 - expression to convey the creator's intent on available musical instruments; traditional or computers, tablets, phone apps and other emerging media).

RESPONDING & CONNECTING

- Students need to make connections between the music they perform and listen to for enjoyment and understand the purpose of varied musical selections. When performing students should be able to:
 - perform (singing, various instruments, technology, etc.) alone and with others using appropriate technique, sound quality, technical accuracy, and expression for the music selected.
 - demonstrate how the context and purpose influences performance practice.

- Students need to make connections between the music others create and their personal musical creations in order to understand the various purposes of music. When creating students should be able to:
 - improvise, arrange, or compose music for a specific purpose or context using traditional means or technology.
 - demonstrate imagination, craftsmanship, aesthetic sensitivity, and refinement in their compositions, arrangements, and improvisations.
- Students may develop personal criteria through an analysis of the music or performance notes, notation, etc. through various modalities, including reading, listening, responding to aural stimuli and “writing” (codifying ideas on paper or software). When performing or presenting a piece, students should be able to:
 - demonstrate the ability to read, write, create, and express musical thoughts and ideas using standard and emerging notation.
 - demonstrate how context (including technology) and cultural influences impact aural and notational skills.
- Performing music with technical accuracy and stylistic expression as a result of the interpretation and analysis, while using developing personal criteria, students may:
 - Identify technical challenges before and after a performance
 - Create music on paper, software or collaboratively in sonic spaces with the assistance of recording technology
 - Perform, reflect, etc.
- Students should demonstrate performance decorum on instruments of choice while they sing, play, and apply personally developed criteria, as appropriate for venue, purpose, context, and style.
- Students will identify and connect the expressive qualities of their music through movement that is integrally woven to their desired intent and outcome.
