Brief Summary of Unit

The critique is integral in the success and growth of the artist. Students will use their knowledge of the elements and principles of design to describe, analyze and evaluate compositions. The initial sessions will be used to refresh student knowledge of the formal critique process that the students will use throughout the year to discuss the work of others and themselves in individual and group sessions. This process will also be used to support creative and aesthetic decisions of the student artist in the artmaking process.

Essential Questions/ Enduring Understandings

- How does the process of critique aid in making creative and aesthetic decisions of the student artist in the art making process?
- How does understanding the elements and principles of design and composition aid in developing an opinion about a work of art?
- How do you analyze and describe a work of art based on the elements and principles of design?
- What makes a work of art successful?
- The critique helps the artist to see his/her creation.
- The critique aids the artist in completing a successful piece of art.

- Teacher and student development of rubric to apply to process and product of the critique for use in all units of study to be amended as new media and processes are encountered. (2-D vs 3-D works of art).

Evidence/Performance Tasks

Fine and Performing Arts students demonstrate differentiated proficiency according to their ability to answer the essential questions through formative and summative assessments. Evidence of progression may be demonstrated in divergent ways through the Artistic Processes of Creating, Presenting/ Producing, Connecting, and Responding.

Tasks will include:

- Completion of written critiques of famous artist's and student work.
- Completion of exit questions based on vocabulary and techniques.
- Engaging in group critiques of famous artist's and student work.
- Creating artwork that demonstrates knowledge, skill and understanding of composition, the elements and principles of design and how they are used.
- Rubric, explaining the 3 Basic Features of an Artwork (subject, composition and content/significance).

Materials

The materials used in this course allow for integration of a variety of instructional, supplemental, and intervention materials that support student learners at all levels in the school and home environments. Associated web content and media sources are infused into the unit as applicable and available.
