Essential Questions

- Does the music contain expressive elements that are not explicitly notated?
- How do the expressive elements of music help the performer communicate to the audience and why is that necessary?
- How do the expressive elements of music vary according to the literature?

Essential Understandings

- 1. To perform a piece of music well, one needs to communicate its form.
- 2. Expressive elements are used to convey musical ideas in concert and marching ensembles.
- 3. Music can be categorized by its form (binary, ternary, rondo, etc.)
- 4. There can be many different interpretations of a piece of music.
- 5. It is the job of a conductor to interpret the music. Conductors arrive at their interpretation through study of the composer's work, life, and background, the score, and through years of performance experience.

Students Will Know

- 1. The expressive terms and symbols used in music.
- 2. How to properly execute dynamics and articulations in concert and marching ensembles.
- 3. How to independently recognize musical phrases.
- 4. How to identify and perform within the ensembles' texture.
- 5. Music is organized and divided into sections, which are characterized by different qualities that are used in labeling the sections.
- 6. How to convey form and character to a listener through musical cues.
- 7. How to assume the character of a marching production through kinesthetic commitment.

Students Will Be Skilled At

Evidence/Performance Tasks

- A student's understanding of musical form and expression is inherent to the student's participation in weekly rehearsals and performances. As such, continuous assessment of this component will occur informally as required by the literature.
- Dynamics, articulations, and phrasing are also formally assessed during playing exams.
- Students will be asked to interpret a repertoire of conducting gestures as prescribed by the director during a typical rehearsal.

Learning Plan

- 1. The teacher will gesticulate musical nuance that the students will be asked to interpret.
- 2. Throughout the rehearsal process, the teacher will facilitate the students' exploration of form and explain how it can be used to improve the performance of a piece.
- 3. The Students will be asked to identify contrasting sections in various recorded examples of musical literature.
- 4. The teacher will facilitate the students' exploration of character and expression during concert and marching rehearsals and performances.
- 5. The students will assume a musical character during fall performances of marching productions.
- Level 5: Students advance their independent interpretation of musical phrases within advanced wind band literature and marching productions. Students develop automatic response to dynamic markings and achieve differentiation in marching and concert dynamic responses. Students will identify the form of musical literature and will be able to communicate the form and character of a piece to a listener, both individually and as an ensemble.
- Note: The teaching sequence for reading and interpreting music for expression and form begins in grade four and is outlined in the curriculum for 4-7, and eighth grade instrumental music (Halpern/Spatz 05; Halpern/Spatz/Murphy '06). Level five is a continuation of that sequence and is referred to below.
