Essential Questions/Enduring Understandings

- A chromatic scale is constructed from all half steps and a whole tone scale is constructed from all whole steps.
- A major scale is constructed from a pattern of whole steps and half steps.
- A scale can be constructed from any note on the keyboard and will start and end on the same note name.
- What do I hear when I listen to music?

- What is the difference between a chromatic scale, a whole tone scale, and a major scale, aurally and in their construction?

Students Will Know/Students Will Be Skilled At

- How to construct a chromatic scale of all half steps.
- How to construct a whole tone scale of all whole steps.
- How to name half steps ascending and descending from a starting note.
- How to use solfege to perform a major scale.
- How to use whole steps and half steps to construct a major scale.
- How to visually and aurally distinguish between a whole step and a half step.
- How to visually and aurally identify intervals in a given scale.
- The names of each degree of the major scale: Tonic (I), Dominant (V), Subdominant( IV), Mediant (iii), Submediant (vi), Supertonic (ii), Leading Tone (vii).
- Using and writing the symbols for flat, sharp, and natural sign, as well as the symbols for double sharps and double flats.

Learning Plan

- Continue practice of aural identification of major, chromatic, and whole tone scales and add harmonic minor scales as an unknown to further check for understanding.
- On manuscript paper, students construct chromatic scales from a given starting note, using sharps ascending and flats descending.
- On manuscript paper, students construct whole tone scales from a given starting note, using sharps or flats as appropriate.
- Preview the essential questions and return to them throughout the course, in discussion and written assignments.
- Teacher asks students to listen to major, chromatic, and whole tone scales. Students describe the aural differences between them.
- Teacher introduces the major scale pattern. Students construct scales from given starting notes, using appropriate sharps and flats.
- Using keyboards for reference, teacher asks students to play or write a chromatic scale and name the notes ascending and descending.
- Using keyboards for reference, teacher asks students to play or write a whole tone scale and name the notes ascending.

Evidence/Performance Tasks

Performing Arts students demonstrate differentiated proficiency according to their ability to answer the essential questions through formative and summative assessments. Evidence of progression may be demonstrated in divergent ways through the Artistic Processes of Creating, Performing/ Presenting/ Producing, Connecting, and Responding.

- Students will aurally identify the difference between a chromatic, whole tone, and major scale.

- Students will visually recognize a major scale from a chromatic or whole tone scale in given examples.
- Students will write a chromatic scale, both ascending and descending, from any given note on the keyboard.
- Students will write whole tone and major scales from any given note, using the appropriate accidentals.
