Essential Questions

- What are the differences between herbs and spices?
- Why are herbs and spices important in food preparation?
- What are the medicinal purposes of some herbs and spices?
- What are the three sensory properties of food?

Essential Understandings

Students will understand that:

- sensory factors can affect a customer's enjoyment of food.
- certain herbs and spices compliment specific foods in a favorable way.
- there is an important difference in the amount of fresh herbs compared to dry herbs and spices used in recipes.
- seasonings and flavorings strengthen a food's natural flavors.

Students Will Know

- key terms: seasoning, flavor enhancer, flavoring, extract, spice, zest, pith, blend, herb, sachet, sensory perception, relish, salsa, marinade.
- the difference between fresh and dried herbs and spices.
- the uses and storage for different herbs and spices.
- the three sensory properties of food.
- the medicinal uses for different herbs and spices.

Students Will Be Skilled At

- recognizing the herbs and spices that should be used in specific dishes.
- cooking with herbs and spices
- knowing when to add fresh vs. dried and
- determining the quantity of herbs to use depending on the need for fresh vs dried ingredients.

Evidence/Performance Tasks

FCS courses are designed to promote skill attainment. Student progression and pace through which they proceed through the performance tasks is based on their affinity for and ability to reach skill attainment. The teacher will determine formative and summative skill attainment; alternative assessments will be incorporated for each student based on their strengths and challenges.

Students will:

- address the essential questions and guiding questions of this unit of study.
- participate in guided question and answer sessions, group and individual discussions, and demonstrate an understanding of the purpose of the unit lesson(s).
- explain the key terms and concepts.
- participate in performance tasks such as related labs
- engage in research of herb and spice using McCormick's Enspiclopedia and other sources.
- complete a reflection when eating a meal to focus on the sensory properties of the meal; the color, appearance, flavor and texture, describing the meal and each of the sensory properties.
- engage in independent tasks such as (but not limited to):
- watching a cooking show / chef cooking on television, recording how herbs and spices are used during food preparation and recording the type of herb and spice used and when the herbs and spices were added to different food presentations.
- completing the unit test: Seasonings and flavorings.
- be evaluated by the teacher through observation of performance.
- complete a self-evaluation rubric of performance.

Learning Plan

- Preview the essential questions and connect to learning throughout the unit.
- Lead demonstration: Explain the culinary history of the different types of onions and garlic including shallots, scallions, leeks, chives, garlic and elephant garlic. Demonstrate the cutting techniques for these foods. Have students practice their knife skills.
- Have students brainstorm various seasonings and flavorings identify potential uses for each, what their function is and what foods it might enhance.
- Facilitate Activity: "Herb Association." Working with one seasoning sample at a time, have students take a small portion of the herb or spice and crush it to release the aromatic oils. Encourage students to sniff and taste each sample and consider/record what foods they might enhance.

- Facilitate Lab #1: Herbs and Spices (example labs: dilled biscuits, Indian spice Chex mix, lemon poppy seed muffins, guacamole, ratatouille).
- Facilitate Lab # 2. In lab groups, have students add one herb / spice at a time to a clear broth and taste it. Continue to add herbs / spices until the lab group likes the flavor, recording results.
- Facilitate Lab # 3: Complimentary condiments lab. Have student's select six condiments and find a recipe for each one. In lab groups, have students prepare two of the selected recipes. Have the class sample all of the recipes. Discuss the dominant flavor in each along with possible uses and variations.
- Facilitate Lab # 4: "Linking Taste and Smell."
- Administer Assessment: Seasonings and Flavorings
