- The library media center has organized sections that help users locate resources
- The library media center is a place for reading, learning, exploring, and accessing a variety of print and digital resources.
- Using shelf markers to locate and return books to the correct location.

Evidence/Performance Tasks

Students demonstrate differentiated proficiency through both formative, summative and benchmark assessments in the classroom. Based on individual student readiness and performance, assessments can be implemented as formative and/or summative.

Developmental progression across years in media is evidenced through benchmark assessments as part of the media specialist's Student Growth Objective (SGO). Follow up diagnostic assessments are used to target skill remediation. Student proficiency allows for additional or alternative assessment based on demonstration or absence of skill.

The performance tasks listed below are examples of the types of assessments teachers may use in the classroom and the data collected by the district to track student progress.

- Benchmark/Alternative: Students will locate proper materials independently within a given time period
- Formative: Demonstrate acceptable second grade behavior for a library media center
- Formative: If needed, students will seek assistance from peers or media specialist
- Formative: Students will return materials on a regular basis
- Formative: Students will self-assess their performance
- Formative: Students will use technology/books in a proper manner
- Formative: With assistance, students will access age appropriate online resources
- Summative: Students will map the different areas of the library media center

Learning Plan

Media Specialist may personalize instruction during this unit and address the distinct learning needs, interests, aspirations, or cultural backgrounds of individual students.

Media Specialists at the elementary level design their own unique lesson plans in order to incorporate the essential questions provided in this unit. The order in which this information is presented is dependent upon the variables specific to each elementary school community. For example, students may be called to the carpet for a lesson followed by guided practice, then independent practice. After the lesson, students will check out books. Library Media time ends with an electronic story so that the media specialist can assist and model proper checkout procedures with students.

Second-grade students will be introduced to the library media center and its media specialist. Procedures and behavioral expectations of the second-grade students when visiting the school library media center will be introduced, modeled, and practiced. Students will learn about the different sections of library book and how books are arranged. Students will review how to use a shelf marker and the procedures for checking out a book from the library media center. Suggested activites are listed below for this unit:

- At the beginning of each year, provide an orientation to the library that includes procedures and behavior expectations.
- Communicate with parents using an orientation letter and if needed, overdue notice.
- Demonstrate how to access age appropriate online resources.
- Introduce key vocabulary: library, library media center, media specialist, librarian, books, book care, checkout, check in, returning books, renew, shelf marker, bookmark, laptop, mouse, computer, and call number.

- Mini lessons may include: Shelf organization, Book care, Library patron responsibilities, Mapping the library media center, and Capstone eBook access and use.
- Preview the essential questions and connect to learning throughout the unit.
- Review the location of different areas of the library media center.
- Students will create a map highlighting the various sections of the library.

Materials

The materials used in this course allow for integration of a variety of instructional, enrichment, and intervention materials that support student learners at all levels in the school and home environments. Associated web content and media sources are infused into the unit as applicable and available.
