

Unit 3 - Effects of Colonization

Content Area: Social Studies
Course(s):
Time Period: Trimester 3
Length: Ongoing; Throughout the trimester
Status: Published

Summary

In the fourth grade Social Studies course, students will study the various events and groups of people that led to the development of our nation prior to the War for Independence. Using a specific cultural framework, students will begin with a study of pre-Columbian Indigenous cultures from five major regions of the current continental United States, including a study of the Lenni Lenape of the Eastern Woodlands to enrich students' understanding of New Jersey's history. Students will then examine the motivations for European colonization and will compare and contrast early English settlements. Finally, students will examine how interactions among African, European, and Native American groups impacted their respective cultures in the 1600s and 1700s.

Throughout the course, students will be presented with opportunities to practice and refine the following Social Studies skills:

- Comparison - Compare and contrast different events, cultures, geographic areas, ideas, values, and institutions.
- Interpretation - Interpret information from a wide variety of primary, secondary, and tertiary sources, including but not limited to those listed here.
- Textual Analysis - Critically read various texts and identify text-based evidence.
- Argumentation - Develop a claim and support it with evidence, both in writing and orally.
- Causation - Evaluate the relationship between historical causes and effects and distinguish between long term and immediate effects.

This unit is part of the larger aforementioned course sequence and specifically focuses on the impacts of European colonization. Students will examine how European colonization affected various groups, including enslaved people and Indigenous cultures. By the end of the unit, students will be able to explain how despite the catastrophic effects of colonization, Indigenous cultures and enslaved people demonstrated resilience and fought to maintain their agency and autonomy.

The ability to make informed and reasoned decisions as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an increasingly globalized world is essential to students' post-secondary success. The skills and content of this unit and the curriculum as a whole encourage students to think critically about important issues, engage in the processes of problem solving, and develop civic competence as part of preparation for college, career, and/or civic life.

Revision Date: August 2021

Standards

This unit also reflects the goals of the Department of Education and the Amistad Commission including the infusion of the history of Africans and African-Americans into the curriculum in order to provide an accurate, complete, and inclusive history regarding the importance of African-Americans to the growth and development of American society in a global context.

In accordance with New Jersey’s Chapter 32 Diversity and Inclusion Law, this unit includes instructional materials that highlight and promote diversity, including: equity, inclusion, tolerance, and belonging in connection with race and ethnicity and religious tolerance.

This unit challenges students to locate, evaluate, and use information effectively. Information literacy includes, but is not limited to digital, visual, media, textual, and technological literacy. Lessons may include the research process and how information is created and produced; critical thinking and using information resources; research methods, including the difference between primary and secondary sources; the difference between facts, points of view, and opinions, accessing peer-reviewed print and digital library resources; the economic, legal, social, and ethical issues surrounding the use of information.

This unit is aligned to the English Language Development (ELD) standards for kindergarten through grade 12 since multilingual learners develop content and language concurrently, with academic content in a classroom where the language of instruction is English. As a result, language learning and language as a means for learning academic content are interchangeable. The following ELD standards are relevant for this unit and course of study:

- Standard 1: Language for Social and Instructional Purposes: English language learners communicate for social and instructional purposes within the school setting.
- Standard 5: Language for Social Studies: English language learners communicate information, ideas and concepts necessary for academic success in the content area of Social Studies.

Essential Questions and Enduring Understandings

Essential Questions:

- What does freedom mean and what does it look like?
- To what extent did the effects of the Atlantic slave trade reverberate throughout American history?
- To what extent did European colonization affect both Indigenous peoples and West Africans?
- To what extent do Indigenous nations continue to preserve their traditions and cultures today?

Enduring Understandings:

- European colonization had negative impacts on various groups of people including Indigenous cultures and enslaved West Africans.
- Both enslaved people and Indigenous peoples tried to maintain their cultures while building new traditions that are still important today.

Objectives

Students will know:

- the aspects of West African culture prior to European colonization and how life changed after the arrival of European traders.
- the role of slavery in the American colonies.
- the role of economics in the institution of slavery.
- that enslaved Indigenous people and Africans had rich and diverse cultures and traditions; they strived to continue these traditions despite attempts by colonizers to eradicate their cultures.

Students will be skilled at:

- discussing the impacts of European colonization on various groups of people.
- discussing the complexities of the institution of slavery.
- analyzing how Indigenous cultures have changed over time.
- thinking critically about how current events and culture are influenced by the past.
- sequencing events, including the relationship between causes and effects.
- developing claims that are supported with historical evidence.
- evaluating and classifying continuities and changes over time.

Learning Plan

The learning plan includes, but is not limited to:

- Teachers are encouraged to use the district teaching points, resources, and slide deck to teach this unit.
- Introduce unit vocabulary: auction, enslaver, Middle Passage, overseer, triangular trade (online vocabulary cards and support available on TCI). Encourage students to notice the words in their reading and utilize them in their own writing. Possible suggestions: use the Frayer Model Strategy to create pictures illustrating the meaning of each vocabulary word, assign students to create a skit or short speech that uses vocabulary words.
- Facilitate discussion regarding different perspectives of European colonization; explain to students that while Europeans believed they were doing something great for their respective countries, there were groups of people who experienced the negative effects of colonization. These groups are enslaved West African and the Indigenous cultures discussed in Unit 1.
- Present a map of Africa and focus on the countries that make up West Africa using the TCI map on page 158 as a guide. Discuss a “timeline” of the development of the institution of slavery and explain how it was abolished by the 13th Amendment in 1865.
- Provide reading and discussion on West Africa (TCI p. 158).
- Show slides from TCI Lesson 8 Station A- African Proverbs. Share several common proverbs e.g. “When life gives you lemons, make lemonade” and discuss the true meaning of them. Relate this to the African proverbs and use corresponding questions to discuss.
- Watch “African Kingdoms” video and discuss the dynamic and diverse cultures that existed prior to 1600. Use a graphic organizer to take notes about different empires, focusing specifically on Mali and Ghana.
- Watch “Mansa Musa” Brain Pop and complete corresponding BrainPOP activities (e.g. Quiz, worksheet, etc.). Discuss what allowed for the Mali Empire to be so successful.
- Take a virtual tour of the Djenné Mosque in Mali. Discuss the replastering celebration that occurs each year and watch PBS’s “The Great Mosque is Replastered” - discuss how the community comes together to preserve this UNESCO World Heritage Site.
- Host a “museum walk” where students are able to examine printouts (or digital versions) of different West African artifacts - suggested resource: Metropolitan Museum of Art online collection
- Watch “Trading Gold for Salt” and discuss how a thriving trade industry existed in West Africa.
- Provide reading and discussion on the enslavement of West African people (TCI p. 159 and 160).
- Discuss the term chattel (noun: a personal possession) with students and explain that slavery in the United States was chattel slavery.
- Read about Elmina Castle in the slide for Station B and the enslavement of West Africans in slides for Station C. Use corresponding questions to discuss.
- View drone footage of Elmina Castle to show students where Elmina Castle is located. Note the contrast between the beauty and grandeur of the building/area and the horrific history that took place there. Discuss the size of the structure and what that reveals in terms of the severity of the activities that took place there.
- Provide reading and discussion on the movement of enslaved people (TCI p. 161 and 162).
- Read about triangular trade using the slide from TCI Lesson 8 Station D. Use corresponding discussion questions.
- Review the definition of a primary source and how it helps people learn about an event. Read “The Interesting Narrative of the Life of Olaudah Equiano” from TCI slide for Station E. Use corresponding questions for discussion.
- Share and discuss the video “Equiano and the Middle Passage.”
- Provide reading and discussion on the movement of enslaved people (TCI p. 163 and 164).
- Read “Slavery and the Colonies” in the slide for Station F. Use corresponding discussion questions.
- Read the story, “Life as an Enslaved Person” in the slide for Station G and discuss. Use corresponding discussion questions. Students can learn more about Hercules from the website George Washington's Mount Vernon.
- Examine, compare, and contrast the biographies of different enslaved people who lived at Mount Vernon
- Read Now Let Me Fly with students - pause at central parts of the story to discuss the effects of the institution of slavery on families. Make a web diagram to explain how slavery impacted enslaved people in different ways. Track what happened to the main character’s family.
- Research ways enslaved people resisted the institution of slavery in both subtle and explicit ways using the Smithsonian Institute’s “Fighting for Freedom” resources and Gilder-Lehrman’s “Slave Resistance”
- Read about African American spirituals from the Library of Congress and discuss how they served as a form of resistance - select two spirituals to listen to and analyze - compare and contrast the lyrics and discuss the feelings the songs invoke.

- Read and discuss the TCI Reading activity: Social Studies Stories- How Enslaved Africans Kept Hope Alive. Discuss the ways enslaved people built a new culture.
- Discuss examples of how enslaved people contributed to different structures and craftsmanship in the United States. Case studies may include the craftsmen who built the White House or potter David Drake.
- Read the TCI Reading activity: "Explore - Juneteenth" and answer the corresponding questions. Optional extension activity: watch "Juneteenth" BrainPOP.
- Review the Indigenous cultures studied in Unit 1 using the anchor charts created. Ask: Why do you think different Indigenous cultures experienced the negative impact of European colonization at different times?
- Discuss the main tactics of colonization: war, disease, enslavement, conversion. Use Encyclopedia of American Indian History & Culture to revisit the Indigenous cultures studied in Unit One and discover the interactions that occurred upon meeting the European colonizers. For example: The Lenape were forced to live on the Brotherton Reservation, travel north and west. As a class, research specific interactions the Indigenous nations studied in Unit One had with the Europeans (or later the Americans). Analyze how this impacted their cultures.
- Use the Smithsonian Institute's "Native Resistance: Then and Now" activities to learn about attempts by Indigenous people to resist the various aspect of colonization
- Read aloud When I Was Eight by Christy Jordan-Fenton and Margaret Pokiak-Fenton - have students track the impact of Indigenous boarding schools, but also how the main character resisted attempts at forced assimilation in both overt and covert ways. Remind students that this story is based on Margaret Pokiak-Fenton's own experiences.
- Read about Luther Standing Bear and the Carlisle School from Junior Scholastic ("True Teens of History - He Fought for Native Rights") - discuss how he advocated for a change in US policy regarding indigenous boarding schools.
- Explain to students that despite the effects of colonization, indigenous nations preserved their cultures.
- Use Encyclopedia of American Indian History & Culture, National Geographic Kids, and Indigenous Cultures and Resources by Region to discover how indigenous nations studied in Unit One continue to celebrate, continue, and preserve their cultures.
- Read and discuss suggested articles from Time For Kids, Scholastic News, and Readworks.org about indigenous cultures' contributions and preservation of their cultures.
 - Readworks- A Native in the Land of Poetry, Tribal Tribute, John Herrington: The First Native American Astronaut
 - Scholastic News- What's in a Name?, Saving Our Language, Finding Navajo
 - Time For Kids- Reclaiming the Past, Tribal Lands Returned, A Cool School
- Suggested culminating activity: Students can choose one Indigenous nation and conduct research about any current events that depict how the nation is continuing to preserve their culture. For example, a school in Bethel, Alaska teaches classes in Yup'ik from kindergarten to third grade. Activities might include a writing piece, a Google Slide show presentation, a poster, a speech, etc. Students should share their conclusions with the class.

Note: Other strategies to address the learning objectives may include, but are not limited to direct instruction, self and peer review, think-pair-share activities, creating visual representations film analysis, Socratic seminars, small group discussions, simulations, jigsaw activities, gallery walks, web quests, and/or inquiry or problem based learning projects.

Assessment

When taking a Social Studies course, students demonstrate differentiated proficiency according to their ability to answer the essential questions through formative and summative assessments. Many of the performance tasks below can be implemented as formative and/or summative assessments. As teachers strive for students to demonstrate proficiency, they will need to create additional or alternative assessments based on demonstration or absence of skill.

Formative Assessments:

- Students will demonstrate understanding of the impacts of colonization through exit tickets, summaries, Venn Diagrams, and discussions.

Summative Assessments:

- Students will explain the impacts of colonization through written and/or oral expression by establishing and supporting a claim; culminating comparative project.

Alternative Assessments:

- Oral presentation with visual model such as a Google slideshow to demonstrate understanding of concepts; drawing models for vocabulary; curation project.

Benchmark Assessments:

- Please consult the Assessment Guide in the K-5 Drive for a list of Benchmark Assessments
