Asia and Eastern European Genocide

While the Holocaust can be considered one of the most well known historical events of the 20th century, there were other genocides happening concurrently as well as genocides that will occur well after the world vows to "never again" allow the destruction of entire groups of people. In this unit, we will examine the Rape of Nanjing during the Japanese conquest of China and much of the Pacific island region during WWII. In the United States, we will examine Japanese internment during wartime. In India, we will explore the violent partition into India and Pakistan and the subsequent mass migration of Hindus and Muslims into their newly deemed homelands. This will lead to an investigation into the impact of the Vietnam War on the Indochina region with a particular focus on chemical warfare and the resulting Cambodian Genocide. Lastly, we will research the Bosnian Genocide as the Soviet bloc crumbles and Eastern Europe competes for territory on the basis of ethnicity and religion.

Transfer

Students will be able to independently use their learning to explore the danger of inaction and ways in which global awareness prevents future atrocities.
