Rationale & Transfer Goals

First grade students will continue to focus on being a good citizen in the school community. They will be able to identify community leaders and recall jobs the government is responsible for. Students will first visit the idea of taxes and its importance. Learners will pose questions about community businesses and describe ways communities come together. They will understand why communities come together in times of crisis and continue to understand how to be a problem solver. Students will state the importance of rights and responsibilities and explain ways to show respect. Students will explain what volunteers do and give examples of ways people volunteer.

Enduring Understandings

Students will be able to explore how community leaders are chosen and how taxes pay for government services, along with the importance of working together to make neighborhoods nice places to live.

Essential Questions

- What is the name of our community? What things can you do for fun in this community?

Intersections of History

Neighborhoods and families have members of varying genders, races, cultures and orientations. Students will develop and build upon global awareness through current and past events. In this section students will read about different members of specific communities and how they have made an impact on their community. Students will see that they are capable of being a positive member in their community no matter their gender, race, culture or orientation.

Black: Students will read Molly, By Golly! by Dianne Ochiltree a story about a firehouse cook who stepped in to help save the day and put out a fire. She is considered by many to be America's first female firefighter. Students will see no matter their skin color they can also help their community.

Hispanic: Students will read Brick by Brick by Heidi Woodward Sheffield and see the contributions construction workers make to their communities. Students will relate to the father in the story as many families have manual labor workers.

Women: Students will read She Loved Baseball by Audrey Vernick. Sports brings communities together and Effa Manley taught that women should be included in this. Girls will see that they are capable and able to do things and be interested in activities that boys are.

LGBTQ: Students will read Families Belong by Dan Saks and learn and appreciate that families come in all shapes and sizes. Students will learn the importance of accepting others no matter their gender, race, culture or orientation.
