Rationale and Transfer Goals

Overview of Framing Your Thoughts:

Framing Your Thoughts is a supplementary scripted program that begins with breaking sentences down to their component parts using sentence frames, symbols, and hand signals. These lessons start with identifying subjects and predicates, their functions, and then applying this knowledge in the creation of their own sentences. This teaches students ways to build sentences with more complexity.

Format of a Lesson:

- Anticipatory Set
 - Input/Direct Statement
 - Model (I Do)
 - Active Participation (We Do)
 - Checking for Understanding (You Do)

Overview of the Writing Workshop Framework:

Writing Workshop is a framework for writing instruction that includes a whole group mini-lesson, independent writing time, conferencing with groups and individuals, and sharing writing with peers and classmates. The purpose is to guide students as they write across genres and to develop independent, engaged writers. Minilessons range from management to genre exploration to craft techniques to editing. Teachers analyze student writing and look at skill progressions to make instructional decisions.

Format of a Lesson:

- Mini-Lesson
- Independent writing/conferencing
- Closure/sharing

ML Resources

Marking Period	2
ML supports for FYT	All MLs: use “Primary Set” for student practice. For application of “Student Practice” students should be provided the words associated with the worksheet’s images in both English and native language. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• E.g. fireman/bombero prior to every lesson if possible.• Share cognates related to their topic; Highlight similarities of words in English and Spanish or home language.• Teachers can use cognates in a sentence, use children-friendly definitions, read the words to them, and write them down for them.

All MLs:

- Provide picture support for student practice words;
- Create color coding for symbols (English in blue & Spanish in red);
- Provide student practice words prior to lesson i.e. slideshow with words and supporting visuals.
- Use exaggerated hand signals to indicate the “sentence symbols” (., !, ?).
- Frequently refer to child or teacher and student created chart/s that outline goal/ expectation.
 - Checklist
 - Rubric
 - Teacher Modeled (in the “I do”)Writing Piece.
- Use Heggerty hand signals to signal beginning, medial, and ending sound.
- Count words in a sentence for students; draw a line for each word in the sentence.
- Encourage students to write the sounds they hear (in either language)
- Use Elkonin (sound boxes) to support students to sound a word out.
- Use the “Power of Three” before students attempt writing a new word: sky-write it, spell it, use it in a sentence, whisper it (say it in different tones: say it like a robot, etc), finger write it on the table, find it in the room, etc.
- Include “Strive for Five” to start a conversation on the topic they are writing about: allow five back and forth turns with the student. Extend conversation with a new word. Example:
 - Teacher: I see you drew something. What is it?
 - Student: A fish.
 - Teacher: “Was it a big fish or a little fish?”
 - Student: “It was a huge fish!”
 - Teacher: “Wow, so it was a gigantic fish!”
 - Student: “Yeah, it was bigger than a whale!”

- To brainstorm ideas use the hierarchy of questions: From least to great difficulty-
 - Prompts requiring a non-verbal response:
 - Show me the caterpillar.
 - Point to the caterpillar.
 - Choice Questions:
 - Is this a caterpillar or a butterfly?
 - Yes or No Questions:
 - Is this a butterfly?
 - Does the butterfly have wings?
 - Can the caterpillar fly?
 - Basic Wh-questions:
 - What is the name of this animal?
 - Where is the caterpillar?
 - When will the caterpillar come out of the cocoon?
 - Why, how, and higher-order thinking questions:
 - Why is the caterpillar eating so much?
 - What will happen if the caterpillar eats too much food?
 - How would you feel if you ate so much food?
 - Embedded Questions:
 - Can you explain why the caterpillar is eating so much?
 - Could you tell me how you would feel if you ate so much food?
- Writing an opinion piece requires making the process more manageable while supporting them in expressing their thoughts and preferences.

Scaffolding Strategies:

1. Prompts: Provide straightforward and relatable prompts that allow the child to express their opinions easily. For example, "My favorite animal is..." or "I like ___ because..."

2. Visual Aids and Examples: Use visual aids like pictures, objects, or charts to help the child understand the concept of opinions. Show examples of simple opinion sentences or drawings expressing preferences.

3. Discussion and Verbal Expression: Engage the child in discussions about their preferences. Encourage them to express their opinions verbally before attempting to write. Use prompts and questions to stimulate conversation.

4. Modeling: Model opinion writing by expressing your own preferences and opinions. Use simple language and encourage the child to follow your example.

5. Graphic Organizers: Use basic graphic organizers like a simple T-chart to help them list their opinions and reasons. For instance, "I like pizza because..." on one side and "I don't like broccoli because..." on the other.

6. Sentence Starters: Provide sentence starters or frames to guide their writing. For example, "I think ___ is the best because..." or "In my opinion..."

7. Encourage Illustrations: Encourage the child to accompany their opinion piece with simple drawings or symbols that represent their opinions. This can help reinforce their ideas and make the writing more engaging.

8. Vocabulary Development: Introduce and reinforce vocabulary related to opinions, such as "like," "dislike," "favorite," "best," etc. Use these words in context and encourage the child to include them in their writing.

9. Peer Sharing and Support: Allow the child to share their opinions with peers, fostering an environment where they can learn from others and gain confidence in expressing themselves.

10. Positive Reinforcement: Celebrate the child's efforts and opinions, emphasizing the value of expressing their thoughts in English. Encourage them to be proud of their work, regardless of any language mistakes.

Remember, the goal is to create a supportive and encouraging environment where the child feels comfortable expressing their opinions in English. Be patient, provide guidance, and celebrate their progress as they develop their writing skills.
