This is a short narrative paragraph explaining the WHY of the unit. How does this unit prepare students for new learning or their life outside of school?

This unit on "Hamlet," focusing on the themes of family, loss, and sacrifice, is designed to deepen students' understanding of complex human experiences and emotions that transcend the confines of literature. By exploring Shakespeare's intricate portrayal of these universal themes, students are encouraged to reflect on their own lives and relationships, enhancing their ability to empathize and critically analyze the world around them. This unit prepares students to approach challenges with a more profound understanding of human nature, fostering resilience and a more nuanced perspective as they encounter and interpret life's various conflicts and dilemmas.

Students will demonstrate their mastery of the standards and skills through a focused benchmark and summative assessment on informative writing. The benchmark will assess their ability to analyze and synthesize key themes from "Hamlet," requiring them to present their findings clearly and accurately using textual evidence. In the summative assessment, students will compose a detailed informative essay that explores the themes of family, loss, and sacrifice in the play, effectively organizing and presenting their analysis to convey complex ideas. Through these assessments, students will show their proficiency in crafting well-structured, insightful, and informative writing, preparing them to communicate complex concepts effectively in both academic and real-world contexts.
