

The Writing Lab

Grade 7

Last Updated: by Matt Prickett

Course Overview

In Grade 7 Writing Lab, students will strengthen their writing by starting with sentence-expanding activities. They will learn how to use subordinating conjunctions (like although, because, and even though) to build more detailed and thoughtful sentences.

Each week, students will read a short anchor text and take part in language dives, where they closely examine how authors use grammar and sentence structure to communicate ideas. These dives will help students understand how to write more clearly and academically.

By the second week, students will begin using a Transition Outline, a tool that helps them organize their ideas into well-structured, multi-paragraph compositions. Through regular practice and feedback, students will learn how to write essays that flow smoothly and show a deep understanding of the topic.

This class is designed to help students write with confidence, clarity, and purpose.

Essential Questions

How do writers use grammar and sentence structure to clearly express their ideas?

What makes a sentence or paragraph effective in academic writing?

How can connecting ideas with conjunctions and transitions make our writing stronger?

Why is it important to understand how other writers build powerful sentences?

Why is structure important in writing, and how can outlining help create it?

In what ways does writing help us better understand what we read and think?

Enduring Understandings

Clear writing begins with clear sentences. Writers use grammar and sentence structure to organize and express their thoughts in ways that others can understand.

Conjunctions and transition words help connect ideas logically. Effective writing uses these tools to show relationships between ideas and improve flow.

Writers learn by studying the writing of others. Analyzing how published authors build sentences helps students understand how to make their own writing stronger.

Strong paragraphs are built from a clear plan. Using tools like the Single Paragraph Outline helps writers organize their thoughts and support their ideas with evidence.

Effective writing has a clear structure. Using outlines helps writers organize their ideas logically, making it easier for readers to follow and understand their message.

Academic writing is a skill that develops with practice. Through repeated reading, planning, and writing, students become more confident in expressing ideas clearly and correctly.

Unit 1: Sentencing and Note-Taking (10 days)

Unit 1 Overview

This unit will introduce students to several strategies to help improve their sentence writing and comprehension through note-taking. Focusing on how writers use sentences to clearly express their ideas, students will practice writing strong, sophisticated sentences in response to academic readings, while also continuing to revisit readings to engage with texts through close-readings and note-taking. By the end of the unit, students will demonstrate a command for sentencing, including variation and use of basic conjunctions.

Unit 3: Compositions (10 days)

Unit 3 Overview

This unit will introduce students to several strategies to help improve their composition skills (ie, multi-paragraph responses, essays, etc). Focusing on how writers use multiple paragraphs to clearly express their ideas, students will practice writing strong paragraphs in response to academic readings, while also continuing to revisit readings to engage with texts through close-readings and note-taking. This unit is focused on the Pre-transition Outline, a strategy that helps students think through a multi-paragraph response to a prompt. By the end of the unit, students will demonstrate a command for writing multiple paragraphs on a single topic. Students will still be expected to demonstrate skills from previous units (advanced sentencings, use of conjunctions, topic sentences, supporting details, etc).

Unit 4: Multi-paragraph Compositions (10 days)

Unit 4 Overview

This unit will introduce students to several strategies to help improve their composition skills (ie, multi-paragraph responses, essays, etc). Focusing on how writers use multiple paragraphs to clearly express their ideas, students will practice writing strong paragraphs in response to academic readings, while also continuing to revisit readings to engage with texts through close-readings and note-taking. This unit is focused on the Pre-transition Outline, a strategy that helps students think through a multi-paragraph response to a prompt. By the end of the unit, students will demonstrate a command for writing multiple paragraphs on a single topic. Students will still be expected to demonstrate skills from previous units (advanced sentencings, use of conjunctions, topic sentences, supporting details, etc).

Final Assessment (1-2 days)

Can be incorporated into Unit 4, Module 2 if needed

By the end of Grade 7 Writing Lab, students should be able to complete the following independently:

- Read and summarize a text
- Outline and publish a multi-paragraph response to a prompt

- Develop topic sentences and supporting details for at least 2 paragraphs
- Develop a thesis statement and concluding statement to show cohesion among paragraphs
- Use conjunctions and transitions to show relationships between ideas

To evaluate final writing, either the Pre-transition Outline Checklist or the Composition Checklist should be used.
