Content Area: English
Course(s):
Time Period: May
Length: 6-8 Weeks
Status: Published

Unit Overview

No one can tell a story like Patricia Polacco! She is a consummate storyteller who draws upon family history and ritual for many of her tales. Her books, of which she has written over one hundred, center on the stories she learned from her family. Polacco is also an artist; her illustrations portray the beauty and workings of the stories of her life and of those she cares deeply about. Her interpretation of the world and the things in it includes lush, broad, vibrant illustrations that are both humorous and poignant. Her books appeal to both young and more advanced readers because they contain a mixture of text and abundant illustrative support that will encourage them to read deeply and reflect upon the many issues addressed. Students will connect to Polacco's choice of topics represented in this unit. She will help students discover that the world around them is full of opportunities to explore, question, ponder, and investigate not only within their own communities but also within the community of the world, past and present. Polacco shows us that writing to think, question, learn, and honor is something we should do every day.

Technology Integration

Students will interact with the SmartBoards, Chromebooks, and Document Camera.

Interdisciplinary Connections

Interdisciplinary connections are made thorough mentor texts and personal choice texts to inspire writing.

TECH.8.1.5.B	Creativity and Innovation: Students demonstrate creative thinking, construct knowledge and develop innovative products and process using technology.
TECH.8.1.5.C	Communication and Collaboration: Students use digital media and environments to communicate and work collaboratively, including at a distance, to support individual learning and contribute to the learning of others.

Differentiation

- Understand that gifted students, just like all students, come to school to learn and be challenged.
- Pre-assess your students. Find out their areas of strength as well as those areas you may need to address before students move on.
- Consider grouping gifted students together for at least part of the school day.
- Plan for differentiation. Consider pre-assessments, extension activities, and compacting the curriculum.
- Use phrases like "You've shown you don't need more practice" or "You need more practice" instead of words like "qualify" or "eligible" when referring to extension work.
- Encourage high-ability students to take on challenges. Because they're often used to getting good grades, gifted students may be risk averse.
- Definitions of Differentiation Components:
 - Content – the specific information that is to be taught in the lesson/unit/course of instruction.
 - Process – how the student will acquire the content information.
 - Product – how the student will demonstrate understanding of the content.
 - Learning Environment – the environment where learning is taking place including physical location and/or student grouping

Benchmark Assessments

Benchmark Assessments are given periodically (e.g., at the end of every quarter or as frequently as once per month) throughout a school year to establish baseline achievement data and measure progress toward a standard or set of academic standards and goals.

Schoolwide Benchmark assessments:

Formative Assessments

Assessment allows both instructor and student to monitor progress towards achieving learning objectives, and can be approached in a variety of ways. Formative assessment refers to tools that identify misconceptions, struggles, and learning gaps along the way and assess how to close those gaps. It includes effective tools for helping to shape learning, and can even bolster students' abilities to take ownership of their learning when they understand that the goal is to improve learning, not apply final marks (Trumbull and Lash, 2013). It can include students assessing themselves, peers, or even the instructor, through writing, quizzes, conversation, and more. In short, formative assessment occurs throughout a class or course, and seeks to improve student achievement of learning objectives through approaches that can support specific student needs (Theal and Franklin, 2010, p. 151).

Formative Assessments used in this unit:

Teacher conferences

Anecdotal records

Summative Assessments

Summative assessments evaluate student learning, knowledge, proficiency, or success at the conclusion of an instructional period, like a unit, course, or program. Summative assessments are almost always formally graded and often heavily weighted (though they do not need to be). Summative assessment can be used to great effect in conjunction and alignment with formative assessment, and instructors can consider a variety of ways to combine these approaches.

Summative assessments for this unit:

Student Self-Reflection

uses a self-reflection questionnaire for students to complete.

Rationale: Writers reflect on their work to learn and grow as authors. A self-reflection questionnaire is a wonderful tool for helping students understand and verbalize how they have grown over the course of the Patricia Polacco unit of study. Students will assess their learning and newly gained knowledge by reflecting on their growth as writers and sharing their findings.
