

Feb. Writing: Grade K How-to Writing

Content Area: English
Course(s):
Time Period: February
Length: 4-5 Weeks
Status: Published

Unit Overview

Students learn to write How-To texts using mentor texts to model the writing.

Text Type: Informational/Explanatory

Because so much of early reading and writing at home and in school involves learning how to processes, grade K students are already familiar with the structure and purpose of such writing. Therefore, it is an excellent genre for students to immerse themselves in and attempt to emulate. While all the books chosen for this How-To writing unit are instructional and informational by nature, they interpret the genre in creative ways that delight and stimulate students' imaginations. Several of the unit books are particularly well suited to emergent writers and readers who are just learning about words and structures because they have large, vibrant illustrations with only a few bold words to provide a visual bridge to writing concepts.

Enduring Understandings

Writers write How-To text to explain to someone else how to do something they know how to do well.

Essential Questions

What are the features of a How-To piece of writing?

How can we write How-To text that tells how to do something we know how to do?

Mini-Lessons

Generating Ideas I: You're the Expert uses Building a House by Byron Barton.

Rationale: How-to writings are written to teach readers how to do some activity or understand some process about which the writer is an expert. To generate ideas for writing, students will explore the topics and activities on which they are experts and what topics they could supply some information about.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.5, SL.K.6,

L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.4, L.K.6

Generating Ideas II: Share What You Care About uses The Pizza That We Made by Joan Holub.

Rationale: How-to writers share with and instruct readers on the topics they care about. Students will consider topics or subjects they care about and could supply some information about when planning their how-to writing.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.1, W.K.2, W.K.3, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4,

Generating Ideas III: Talk Readers Through Your How-To uses Walk On! A Guide for Babies by Marla Frazee.

Rationale: Procedural writers speak directly to readers to instruct and advise them on the processes about which they write. Students will think about the specific audience to whom they wish to direct their own how-to pieces.

Generating Ideas IV: Do What Other How-To Writers Do uses Road Builders by B. G. Hennessy and I Can Draw People by Ray Gibson.

Rationale: How-to writers get ideas by gathering information through observing others, asking experts, practicing procedures themselves, and sketching or drawing. Students will consider how writers get inspired and will use one or more of these methods to generate ideas.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.5, SL.K.6,

Generating Ideas V: Celebrate the Seasons

uses All You Need for a Snowman by Alice Schertle and Growing Vegetable Soup by Lois Ehlert.

Rationale: Authors of how-to writings generate ideas by thinking of the different activities they like to do throughout the year. To generate ideas for writing, students will explore the seasonal activities they enjoy and know how to do.

Selecting: Love It or Leave It uses I Can Draw People by Ray Gibson.

Rationale: How-to writers choose topics about which they are passionate and eager to teach to others. Students will review the ideas they have collected in their Writing Folders and select one to develop into a more substantial how-to writing to publish and share.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.6, L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.6

Drafting I: Begin With a Materials List

uses The Pizza That We Made by Joan Holub and If You Decide to Go to the Moon by Faith McNulty.

Rationale: How-to writers begin their pieces with helpful lists of materials needed to complete the process or activity. Students will consider the role and value of such lists and create one to aid readers with their how-to writings.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.5, SL.K.6, L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.4, L.K.6

Drafting IIA: Order & Number (Using Pictures)

uses How to Be by Lisa Brown and students' drafts.

Rationale: Procedural writers use pictures to illustrate each part or step of the how-to process they write about. Students will create drawings that illustrate the sequence of steps in their how-to processes. With prompting and support, students will also describe the relationship between the illustration and the text the illustration depicts.

Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.5, SL.K.6, L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.5, L.K.6

uses The Pizza That We Made by Joan Holub, If You Decide to Go to the Moon by Faith McNulty, and students' drafts.

Rationale: How-to writers use transition words to indicate the order and sequence of steps they want readers to follow. Students will create numbered steps and written descriptions to accompany and explain the pictures they created in the previous lesson.

Revising I: Labels & Captions

uses Growing Vegetable Soup by Lois Ehlert, I Can Draw People by Ray Gibson, and students' drafts.
Rationale: How-to writers use labels, captions, and other environmental print to enhance readers' understanding and to create visual interest. Students will identify how labels and captions are used in the unit literature and will then create an illustration for their own how-to piece that uses labels and captions.
Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.5, SL.K.6, L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.4, L.K.5, L.K.6

Revising II: Review Your Verbs

uses Building a House by Byron Barton, How to Be by Lisa Brown, and students' drafts.

Editing I: Sentence Enders Say a Lot

uses All You Need for a Snowman by Alice Schertle and students' drafts.
Rationale: Writers use end punctuation to indicate where thoughts begin and end, to inform readers how to read a line, and to show where to place emphasis. Students will examine end punctuation in the literature they read, consider the conventions regarding its use, and then edit their own end punctuation choices.
Common Core State Standards: W.K.2, W.K.5, W.K.7, W.K.8, SL.K.1, SL.K.2, SL.K.3, SL.K.4, SL.K.6, L.K.1, L.K.2, L.K.4, L.K.6

uses How to Lose All Your Friends by Nancy Carlson, If You Decide to Go to the Moon by Faith McNulty, and students' drafts.
Rationale: How-to writers use numbers and transition words to help readers follow the step-by-step processes they write about. Students will consider how unit writers use numbers and transition words and then check the spelling and format of such ordinals in their own writing.

Differentiation

- Understand that gifted students, just like all students, come to school to learn and be challenged.
- Pre-assess your students. Find out their areas of strength as well as those areas you may need to address before students move on.
- Consider grouping gifted students together for at least part of the school day.
- Plan for differentiation. Consider pre-assessments, extension activities, and compacting the curriculum.
- Use phrases like "You've shown you don't need more practice" or "You need more practice" instead of words like "qualify" or "eligible" when referring to extension work.

- Encourage high-ability students to take on challenges. Because they're often used to getting good grades, gifted students may be risk averse.
- Definitions of Differentiation Components:
 - Content – the specific information that is to be taught in the lesson/unit/course of instruction.
 - Process – how the student will acquire the content information.
 - Product – how the student will demonstrate understanding of the content.
 - Learning Environment – the environment where learning is taking place including physical location and/or student grouping

Differentiation occurring in this unit:

Support, scaffolding and stretches for gifted will occur for each student as they work through their topic choices, drafts and final published "How-To" writings.

Modifications & Accommodations

Refer to QSAC EXCEL SMALL SPED ACCOMMODATIONS spreadsheet in this discipline.

Modifications and Accommodations used in this unit:

IEP accommodations, extra support in writing from the teacher or classroom aide will offer individualized instruction and support as necessary to complete the How-To writing piece.

Benchmark Assessments

Benchmark Assessments are given periodically (e.g., at the end of every quarter or as frequently as once per month) throughout a school year to establish baseline achievement data and measure progress toward a standard or set of academic standards and goals.

Schoolwide Benchmark assessments:

Aimsweb benchmarks 3X a year

Linkit Benchmarks 3X a year

Additional Benchmarks used in this unit:

Performance Check-List

Self-Assessment

Formative Assessments

Assessment allows both instructor and student to monitor progress towards achieving learning objectives, and can be approached in a variety of ways. Formative assessment refers to tools that identify misconceptions, struggles, and learning gaps along the way and assess how to close those gaps. It includes effective tools for helping to shape learning, and can even bolster students' abilities to take ownership of their learning when they understand that the goal is to improve learning, not apply final marks (Trumbull and Lash, 2013). It can include students assessing themselves, peers, or even the instructor, through writing, quizzes, conversation, and more. In short, formative assessment occurs throughout a class or course, and seeks to improve student achievement of learning objectives through approaches that can support specific student needs (Theal and Franklin, 2010, p. 151).

Formative Assessments used in this unit:

Periodic conferences with the teacher, anecdotal records, discussion.

Summative Assessments

Summative assessments evaluate student learning, knowledge, proficiency, or success at the conclusion of an instructional period, like a unit, course, or program. Summative assessments are almost always formally graded and often heavily weighted (though they do not need to be). Summative assessment can be used to great effect in conjunction and alignment with formative assessment, and instructors can consider a variety of ways to combine these approaches.

Summative assessments for this unit:

Final How-To Writing evaluation

Self reflection - use a self-reflection questionnaire.

Rationale: How-to writers, like authors, engage in self-reflection and evaluation to learn and grow as writers. Students will conduct a self-assessment to reflect on how their understanding of the how-to genre has grown over the course of the unit.
