Learners with Special Education Needs

Prepare Students for the Experiential Exercise Explain to students what will happen in the activity the day before you plan to execute it. Allow students who may be uncomfortable with the roles of this activity to choose to be observers or reporters. Provide them with a copy of Information Master 2 to use as a checklist. During the activity, have them check off items that they observe.

Allow for Additional Roles Assign the role of monarch to students who may find the physical aspects of this activity challenging. This will allow these students to remain in a central location where nobles, knights, and serfs will have to approach them. Or, assign these students the role of “invader.” They can assist you in “attacking” various manors during Step 7 of the Experiential Exercise. Prior to this step, they can act as observers to the exchanges of fealty throughout the activity, and comment on these interactions during the debriefing.

Advanced Learners

Provide an Alternative to the Processing Activity Challenge students to compare feudalism to modern society. Encourage students to think about which individuals or groups in our society most resemble the various social classes in European feudal society. Next to each level of feudal society, have students list those modern groups, and draw symbols to represent them. Then have students list the similarities and differences between the modern groups and the feudal groups.

Learners with Special Education Needs

Modify the Reading Notes Give students a copy of the Guide to Reading Notes with the answer to one question in each section omitted. As they listen to each skit, students can focus on the single question they are asked to answer. Remind them to review the answers for the other questions in each section.

Modify the Activity During the Experiential Exercise, let students become a fifth member of a group and observe its activities. Give student observers an extra copy of the role cards from Student Handout 21, and have them check off each role as it is developed by the group.

Shorten the Processing Activity Instead of having students design an entire class schedule for a young samurai student, ask them to instead choose what they think is the most important training for a samurai. Have students list that subject and then complete these sentences.

- Through this kind of training, a samurai learns to
- I think that _____ is the most important training for a samurai because

Advanced Learners

Enhance or Replace the Processing Activity In addition to or as a replacement for the Processing activity, have students create a Venn diagram that compares the training of Japanese samurai to that of modern American soldiers. Students can gather information for this Venn diagram by

- reviewing the list of skills, knowledge, and values from the Preview activity
- skimming this lesson for information on Japanese samurai training
- using their knowledge of American military training or reading about basic training for the U.S. Army on the Internet

Once students have created this Venn diagram, challenge them to choose one element of Japanese samurai training that would be a useful addition to the preparation of American soldiers. Have them explain and justify their selection in a few sentences below their Venn diagram.

Learners with Special Education Needs

Provide an Alternate Role Assign some students the role of Host, and prepare a short checklist for them to use when completing Step 5 on Student Handout 4. A checklist for the Host to use during rehearsal might include the following:

- Each group member is actively involved in the dramatization.
- Actors speak their lines loudly, clearly, and at the right time.
- Actors use costumes and props appropriately.
- Actors know when and how visitors will participate.

Provide Students with the Guide to Reading Notes Allow them to highlight their copy as they read the section prior to each dramatization. It may be helpful to model for some students how to highlight only those select words and phrases that will help them better process the material.

Create Larger Groups for Dramatizations Consider creating groups of five to accommodate students who may need additional help fulfilling the requirements of their roles as given in Step 1 of Student Handout 4.

Advanced Learners

Provide an Alternative to the Processing Activity Have students write a more elaborate set of diary entries of someone living in a medieval town. Instruct them to add details about each aspect of their day and to describe one of the following in their entry:

- an experience as a guild member
- an exchange with a family member in the solar
- a situation that involved medical treatment
- a description of events during a festival day in town

Allow students the opportunity to present this Processing activity in a creative format, such as a medieval manuscript, and to include illustrations.

Learners with Special Education Needs

Provide Support for the Writing Activity Help students write their tanka poems by having them review Section 7, from the previous lesson. Then project the annotated tanka poem below, and have students practice pausing after each syllable and counting the syllables.

A/ ska/ter/ glides/ by (5 syllables) and/ be/comes/ one/ with/ the/ ice (7 syllables)

mas/ter/ of/ her/ world (5 syllables)

I/ weep/ at/ such/ per/for/mance (7 syllables)

this/ po/e/try/ in/ mo/tion. (7 syllables)

Finally, have students write their own tanka poem, and have a classmate check its syllable count.

Advanced Learners

Modify the Activity Place an extra question at each station in the home of a Japanese noble to further challenge students.

- Station A: Would you rather have been an emperor or a member of the Fujiwara family during the Heian period? Why?
- Station B: How are the privileges of the top three ranks of the Heian court similar to the privileges of the upper class in the United States today? How are they different?
- Station C: Do you think people of the Heian court were more obsessed with beauty than people are today? Justify your opinion.
- Station D: Which piece of sculpture do you think should have more value, one carved from a single piece of wood or one that includes several pieces of carved wood joined together? Why?
- Station E: Reread Sei Shonagon's list of "Things That Should Be Short." What four items would you add to her list?

- Station F: Of the problems described in this section, which do you think contributed most to the downfall of the Heian court? Justify your opinion.
- Station G: What modern American game best compares to kemari? Justify your opinion.

Learners Reading and Writing Below Grade Level

- Read One Section at a Time Break up the reading during the Visual Discovery activity so that students read only one section at a time.
- To break up the reading for Physical Geography of Greece:
- Ask all but the last bulleted question in Step 2. Have students read Section 2 and complete the corresponding Reading Notes.
- Ask the last bulleted question in Step 2. Have students read Section 3 and complete the corresponding Reading Notes.
- To break up the reading for Ancient Greek Colonies and Trade Routes: Ask all but the last two bulleted questions in Step 5. Have students read Section 4 and complete the corresponding Reading Notes.
- Ask the last two bulleted questions in Step 5. Have students read Section 5 and complete the corresponding Reading Notes.
- Scaffold the Reading Notes Use the Guide to Reading Notes to scaffold the Reading Notes so that students take steps toward working more independently.
- For Section 2, omit key words that students can fill in.
- For Sections 3 and 4, provide prompts that students can complete.
- For Section 5, have students complete as written.

Learners with Special Education Needs

- Divide the Preview Question Divide the Preview question in the Interactive Student Notebook into two separate questions: How do you think the physical geography of Greece influenced where people settled? and How do you think the physical geography of Greece influenced how people lived? Students should write a brief response to each question.
- Offer a Choice for the Processing Activity Have students complete two of the four storyboard pages for the Processing activity. Allow students the choice of doing Pages 1 and 2 or Pages 3 and 4. Alternatively, consider pairing students to work together to complete all four pages of the storyboard.

Advanced Learners

- Add Questions to the Debrief Add the following questions to Step 8 in the Visual Discovery activity:
