Content Area: Social Studies
Course(s): Social Studies 7
Time Period: Marking Period 3
Length: MP3
Status: Published

Essential Questions

- What is social reform?
- Who were the abolitionists?
- What were the goals of the Women's Movement?

Big Ideas

- Westward movement, industrial growth, increased immigration, the expansion of slavery, and the development of transportation systems increased regional tensions.
- Awareness of and appreciation for cultural differences is critical to avoid barriers to productive and positive interaction.

Career Education

9.4.8.GCA.1 Model how to navigate cultural differences with sensitivity and respect (e.g., 1.5.8.C1a).

9.4.8.GCA.2 Demonstrate openness to diverse ideas and perspectives through active discussions to achieve a group goal.

Connection

Highlight and discuss the impact and importance of diverse ideas and cultural differences on different career choices and paths.

Technology Integration

8.1.8.A.1 Demonstrate knowledge of a real world problem using digital tools.

Activity:

Students will create a presentation on a social reform from Chapter 14. Students will work in cooperative groups and research the temperance movement, improvements in education, impact of transcendentalists, the abolitionist movement, and the women's rights movement. They will create a google slides presentation and share their findings with the class. In their presentation, students will compare how these issues may have changed over time and how reform is being addressed today, which will demonstrate their understanding of a real world problem using digital tools.

Amistad Lessons

Objective: Students will be able to compare/contrast the economy and people of the North and South by creating a google slide presentation. Students will be able to describe what life was like for slaves in the South. Students will be able to identify abolitionists and explain the role they played in the slavery resistance movement.

Materials: textbook, organizer on google docs, google slides, SMART Notebook

Activity:

- Students will choose cooperative groups and will spin a wheel using SMART notebook to find out which topic they will be covering.
- Each group will cover a different topic about slavery in the South and the resistance movement against slavery. They will also cover what life was like for African Americans in the Northern part of the United States in the 1800s.
- Once topics are chosen, each group member will decide which sub-topic(s) they are covering on the graphic organizer.
- Each group will share a graphic organizer and work on it through Google Documents.
- Students will use their textbook and reliable websites to research the topic they have chosen.
- While working on the graphic organizer, students will conference with the teacher to make sure information is accurate and informative.
- Once their graphic organizer is approved by the teacher, students will create a Google Slide presentation on their topic. Students will be encouraged to add visuals or short video clips to the presentation.
- The teacher will continue to conference with the students.
- Students will present their topic to the class and assess the class with a critical thinking and comprehension question.
- Students (not presenting) will record the information from the presentations on a graphic organizer.

Assessment: presentation rubric, organizer, presentation, group assessment

Length of Time: 10 school days

Social Studies Standards

6.1 U.S. History: America in the World: All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically about how past and present interactions of people, cultures, and the environment shape the American heritage. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions that reflect fundamental rights and core democratic values as productive citizens in local, national, and global communities.

6.2 World History/Global Studies: All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically and systematically about how past interactions of people, cultures, and the environment affect issues across time and cultures. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions as socially and ethically responsible 35 world citizens in the 21st century.

6.3 Active Citizenship in the 21st Century: All students will acquire the skills needed to be active, informed citizens who value diversity and promote cultural understanding by working collaboratively to address the challenges that are inherent in living in an interconnected world.

Activity:

Teacher makes a general oral introduction about Paul Robeson to students. Students are divided into small groups of four or five. Each group is assigned a period of time in Robeson's life to research. They are given index cards to take notes. On each card write something important that happened during that period of time. Put the cards together in the group, have a discussion and write a paragraph summarizing that period of time. Each group should be an expert on that period in Robeson's life. Switch groups so that each group is composed of experts on different periods. Individuals are responsible for teaching about their period. Students can ask each other questions. The new group is responsible for producing a multiple paragraph paper reflecting the life of Paul Robeson.

Diversity Integration

Black History Month

Students will watch a video of King's famous "I Have a Dream" speech from the March on Washington on August 28, 1963. Individually students will brainstorm about their own dreams and what they hope to achieve someday. Students will fill out a thought bubble describing what their dream is. These thought bubbles will be part of a Martin Luther King, Jr. bulletin board.

Diversity Lesson

Objective:

Students will be able to describe the legacy of key figures in the antislavery movement and explain the role NJ played in the Underground Railroad.

Activity:

- 1-Students will use what they learned in Chapter 15 to research key figures in the antislavery movement.
- 2- They will complete a graphic organizer to guide their research. Some key figures students will research are Harriet Tubman, Frederick Douglass, Sojourner Truth, Susan B. Anthony, Harriet Beecher Stowe, William Lloyd Garrison, Grimke Sisters, etc. Examples can be found using:
<https://www.zinnedproject.org/materials/black-abolitionists/>
- 3- Students will research their historical figure on websites to learn background information.
- 4- Students will research the person's effects on the anti-slavery movement and their enduring legacy.
- 5- Once they conference with the teacher and review their organizer, they will design a presentation on their selected person.
- 6- They will add games or videos to enhance their classmates' understanding of the notable figure.
- 7- They will present their Google slideshow to classmates.

Assessment:

Presentation rubric, graphic organizer, discussion

Materials:

Textbook, notebook, Chromebook, google slides, reliable websites

African American History Studies

Harriett Tubman Speaks

Black History Month

Article from African American History-Untold Stories

Harriet Tubman worked hard to free slaves from the Southern slaveholding states and bring them to safety by way of the Underground Railroad. While the North and South fought in the Civil War, many African Americans took up arms in the fight.

Historical Figures

John Roebling Chapter 14

Students will learn about technology and industry in the 1800s. Along with railroads, and canals students will be introduced to some of the great bridges in the United States. Ask students to name examples of famous U.S. bridges (Brooklyn, George Washington, Golden Gate). All three of these were designed or built with the help of New Jersey native John Roebling and his sons. Students will be shown a YouTube video about Roebling. They will learn that, like the town of Lowell in Massachusetts built around the mills and their workers, the town of Roebling, New Jersey grew around the steel mill established by Roebling's son Charles. Students will also view the Roebling Museum website to learn more of the history of John Roebling and his sons.

Social and Emotional Learning

Was Manifest Destiny Justified

- PLAN Problem Solving
- Responsible Listening
- Collaborative Creativity
- Audience-Focused Communication

Students work cooperatively in groups to read the primary source material about Manifest Destiny and to teach it to the rest of their classmates. They break down the lesson together and decide how it will be taught and who assumes the various teaching responsibilities. Students will have a Yes/No/Maybe debate on whether Manifest Destiny was justified. Students will be broken into groups to represent each side of the issue. Students will collaborate to come up with a statement that they will be presenting to the class to state their opinion for discussion and debate. Students will also read from the primary source that corresponds to their position.

- Responsible Listening
- Respectful Empathic Debate
- Peer Opinion Sharing: Yes-No- Maybe* STAT discussion questions

The room will be split into the supporters of Manifest Destiny on one side and the detractors on the other. Those students not committing to a point of view initially will be to the side. Supporters of each side will begin by reading aloud from the primary text of their position. Then, students will respectfully take turns presenting reasons for their position in hopes of convincing others to join their side. Students are free to move from one location to another if/when they are convinced another location is a better fit for them

- Responsible Listening
- Peer Opinion Sharing: Yes-No- Maybe* STAT discussion questions
- Audience-Focused Communication

When everyone who wants to share has finished, students return to their seats. They will then discuss what if any points were made that convinced them of their stance on Manifest Destiny. Students will also discuss what they got out of the lesson. Respectful dialogue can only occur when people are willing to truly listen to what others are saying. There are no right or wrong answers in this lesson.
