STUDENT LEARNING TARGETS

Declarative Knowledge

Students will understand that:

- there are three different levels of government in the United States: local, state and federal (the entire country).
- the local government (i.e. mayor, town council) takes care of the local community.
- the local government is made up of individuals from the community that make sure the town is running smoothly.
- the state government (i.e. governor, legislature, court system) looks out for the entire state of New Jersey.
- each state has its own constitution or written description of the government that will be in charge of taking care of the people living within that state.
- the federal government (executive, legislative, and judicial branch) takes care of the entire country.
- the United States Constitution or our government in writing describes the three parts of our government that are in charge of running the entire county.
- some of the good qualities for our leaders are: honesty, hard working, a good listener, a good communicator, and a good decision maker.
- our government provides us with important services; such as, providing schools so we can learn, providing police, firefighters, and the army so we can be safe, and health care.
- some of the ways we can participate in our government and the community are: learning about issues and sharing your opinion, attending public meetings, participating in peaceful demonstrations, voting, serving on a jury, learning the rules of the country and its history.

- a few of the reasons why it is important to work together are: we can get better ideas, get more work done, problem solve quicker, and increases creativity.
- the economy is the system in which goods and services are bought and sold.
- a free market is an economy where choices are left up to each buyer and seller.
- goods are items that can be bought, sold, and traded, such as food and computers.
- a market is a place where buyers and sellers come together.
- scarcity is when people want more things than they can actually have.
- services are tasks you pay someone to do for you.
- buyers must think about the benefits and costs of the things they are thinking about buying.
- a good choice is one in which the benefits are greater than the costs.
- an individual's background, preferences, personality, motivations, and economic status may influence what we buy or sell.
- positive influences when deciding what to buy and sell may be: family, friends, researching and understand what you want, patience, and ability to defer gratification.
- negative influences when deciding what to buy and sell may be: advertisements, poor mood, difficulty budgeting, and peers.

Procedural Knowledge

Students will be able to:

Explain how our government is organized and how it works.

- explain how our government works (local, state, nation).
- describe the roles/jobs of our government and identify good qualities for our leaders.
- describe the services that our government provides to the people.
- investigate how we can participate in our government and the community.
- describe why it is important to work together and be respectful of each other's differences.

Describe how we buy and sell things.

- define economy, free market, goods, market, scarcity, services.
- identify positive and negative influences on our decisions when we buy and sell.
- examine quantitative data and decide if the benefits outweigh the costs on decisions that impact an individual and/or the community.
- explain what influences what we decide to buy or sell.
