Learning a language involves interpreting meaning from listening, viewing, and reading culturally authentic materials in the target language.

Presentational communication mode involves presenting information, concepts, and ideas to an audience of listeners or readers on a variety of topics.

Novice Mid learners understand and communicate at the word and phrase level independently when responding to learned questions, ask memorized questions, state needs and preferences, and briefly describe people, place, and things. They have no real functional abilities and, therefore, cannot participate in true exchanges of information.

Interpersonal communication is the exchange of information and the negotiation of meaning between and among individuals.

Communicate effectively in more than one language in order to function in a variety of situations and for multiple purposes.

Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the nature of language through comparisons of the language studied and their own. Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the concept of culture through comparisons of the cultures studied and their own.

Learners use the language both within and beyond the classroom to interact and collaborate in their community and the globalized world. Learners set goals and reflect on their progress in using languages for enjoyment, enrichment, and advancement.

Novice Mid learners understand and communicate at the word and phrase level and can use memorized words and phrases independently when stating needs and preferences. They can describe people, places, and things with a combination of memorized words and phrases and a few simple sentences formed by combining and recombining learned language.

Develop insight into the nature of language and culture in order to interact with cultural competence.
