Unit Overview

This unit is designed to assess the background knowledge students have gained thus far in Italian. Topics reviewed are basic vocabulary such as numbers, colors, time, the seasons, and classroom items as well as basic greetings and salutations, classroom routines and commands.

Enduring Understandings

People from different cultures all have daily routines, cultural celebrations and share similar feelings. It is important for people from all cultures to be able to communicate with others and express their feelings and to care about others. Learning a language connects us to the larger world.

Essential Questions

Why is it important to learn a foreign language?

How does learning a foreign language relate to other content areas?

How can one use a foreign language to help better understand one's own native language? What fundamental sound system is used in the target language?

Learning Objectives

Greet individuals both formally and informally.

Count in Italian from 0-50.

Be able to tell time.

Identify shapes and colors.

Describe the physical geography of Italy.

Use simple commands and greetings in Italian.

Identify and explain significant cultural icons in Italy's history.

| | Interpersonal communication between and among people is the exchange of information and the negotiation of meaning. |

Novice High learners understand and communicate at the phrase and sentence level and can use words, lists, and simple sentences independently when talking about everyday life. They can handle a few uncomplicated communicative tasks when the situations are straightforward and the contexts familiar. Conversation is limited to basic personal information, basic objects, and a limited number of activities, preferences, and needs. Novice High learners understand and respond to simple direct questions and requests and can independently ask a few formulaic questions. They rely on learned language that they begin to recombine to express their own ideas and needs. Novice High learners use sentence-level speech but often revert to words and phrases.

Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the relationship between the practices and perspectives of the cultures studied. Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the relationship between the products and perspectives of the cultures studied.

Novice High learners present information using words, phrases, and some sentences to talk about themselves, their interests, their preferences, and other topics of interest. They begin to speak and write at the sentence level on familiar topics, yet their communication is often a mixture of words, phrases, and simple sentences.

Novice High learners sometimes understand information from sentence-length speech in basic personal and social contexts where there is contextual support, though comprehension may often be very uneven. They are able to understand speech and writing dealing with areas of practical need such as highly standardized messages, phrases, or instructions, if the vocabulary has been learned.

Learners use the language both within and beyond the classroom to interact and collaborate in their community and the globalized world. Learners set goals and reflect on their progress in using languages for enjoyment, enrichment, and advancement.

Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the nature of language through comparisons of the language studied and their own. Learners use the language to investigate, explain, and reflect on the concept of culture through comparisons of the cultures studied and their own.

Presentational communication involves presenting information, concepts, and ideas to an audience of listeners or readers on a variety of topics.

Communicate effectively in more than one language in order to function in a variety of situations and for multiple purposes.

Learning a language involves interpreting meaning from listening, viewing, and reading culturally authentic materials in the target language.

Develop insight into the nature of language and culture in order to interact with cultural competence.
