Unit Overview

In the first unit of Health for Grades 3-5 students will explore a variety of general health topics and areas of study. They will define what it means to be “well” and identify the different areas of maintaining a healthy lifestyle. In part with learning how to maintain healthy lifestyle, they will be equipped with a set of decision making skills and strategies to make health conscious decisions in the areas of wellness, nutrition, diseases / health conditions, and fitness. Students will become more knowledgeable by interacting with their peers and the adults around them in small and whole group discussions, they will be expected to survey their environments to identify how it affects their health, create healthy meal plans for breakfast-lunch-dinner, devise a plan to combat the spread of common diseases and health conditions such as the common cold inside the classroom, and seek to incorporate more time in their day for physical fitness and activity such as going for a walk outside or joining a youth athletic organization. Overall students are given decision-making skills in order to live and maintain a healthy lifestyle.

In Unit 3, students will engage with content regarding:

- What makes a family
- Healthy family routines
- Ways families support each other
