Module Overview

The principal of a school, the mayor of a town or city, and the owner of a local business have at least one thing in common—they all are leaders in the community. But what makes these people good leaders? In this module, children will read stories and texts that will help them identify the qualities many good leaders possess. They can learn to recognize these qualities in themselves so they can work to become good leaders in the classroom and in their school.

Essential Question: What are the qualities of a good leader?
